Chidoriya

"Japanese Tenugui Towels"

Chidoriya is a small shop, not more than a stall really, selling traditional Japanese tenugui. Tenugui is a thin cloth that can be used as towel, dishcloth or handkerchief. Many of the designs on the tenugui come from traditional Japanese life, and feature cranes, carp, flowers or landscapes; however, some more modern themes like smiley faces and Halloween designs are also present. The shop also sells wall hangings, bags, hair scrunchies and fans. The main shop is in Tokyo in the Chuo-ku district. -AH

Shatoh

"Paper Craft in Kamakura"

This small shop on Kamakura's main shopping street sells beautiful Japanese washi paper and a range of other paper goods. One side of the shop is dedicated to the rolls of paper, which is displayed from floor to ceiling on the shelves, while on the other side are racks of cards with folded origami figures mounted on them, printed envelopes, postcards, colorful origami paper fans, posters and notebooks. These make excellent souvenirs and gifts. -AH
