Rivas Restaurant & Bar

"Hidden & Full of Character"

Those unfamiliar with Montrose may have trouble finding the place at first, but you'll never forget again. Rivas is a different sort of Italian joint - one that pleasantly feels very much like home. There's a soothing combination of fun personality and old school elegance throughout the sizable dining room. The skilled bartenders transmit this culture while shaking perfect martinis and all sorts of other refreshing cocktails. Rivas' delicious approach to classic Italian favorites is well worth their fair prices. Get the Rosemary Pork Chops with Potato Pancakes for your entree - lightly breaded with a slight crunch, they're easily some of the best in town. The veal and pasta dishes are also especially satisfying. -Adam Rosen

Da Marco Cucina E Vino

"Italian Flavors"

Da Marco Cucina E Vino is named after the owner and Chef Marco Wiles, who received his training from his Italian mother, as well as from his cooking experiences in other Houston Italian restaurants. The originality of his dishes makes this a great dining experience for any Italian food lover. This place prides itself for offering authentic Italian cuisine. The décor is bright and comfortable with tones of yellow in the walls and wood floors. The pasta is made in-house from imported ingredients. Specialties include octopus salad, venison fettuccine and lamb chops. An all-Italian wine list is offered to add flavor to any entrée. The Zuppa Inglese, a brandy-soaked cake, is a must for dessert.

Plus, with rooms like the Orvis Room you know just where to take the outdoorsman in the family. Just let them gaze at the rustic carvings along the bar. ## The Capital Grille

"Maximum Masculine"

From the U.S. eagle emblem in the lobby to the two giant lion sculptures that guard the entrance, everything at Capital Grille is done BIG. The overall effect comes across as somewhat "macho," but it is an unusual experience that will inspire repeat conversations well into the future. Speaking of big, think sinking your teeth into a towering 14 ounce filet mignon that is complemented by a one pound baked potato and a massive side dish of vegetables. The menu is pricey, but with portions in these sizes, you can always share. A glass of house wine is available too.
