New Orleans Pharmacy Museum

"Apothecary Shop"

In 1823, the first licensed pharmacist in the United States, Louis J. Dufilho Jr. opened an apothecary shop here. This Creole-style town house doubled as his home, and he cultivated herbs needed for medicines in the interior courtyard. Exhibits highlight milestones in pharmacy and medicine. The exhibits include various medical widgets, gizmos and gadgets, some practical and some not.

Memorial Hall - Confederate Civil War Museum

"Über 5.000 Werkzeuge"

Das Museum wurde 1899 gegründet, als die meisten der Werkzeuge und Ausrüstungsgegenstände zur Verfügung gestellt wurden. Man sieht ein breites Spektrum von Dingen aus dem Bürgerkrieg wie Uniformen, Waffen, Munition, medizinische Ausrüstung, Kampfflaggen und Währungen. Ebenfalls ausgestellt sind einige persönliche Gegenstände, die der Confederate President Jefferson Davis gehört haben, und ein Teil von Robert E. Lees Feldlager-Silberservice. Es ist ein interessanter Ort, um etwas über Geschichte zu lernen.

Backstreet Cultural Museum

"History in the Backstreets"

In a city that celebrates like no other, the Backstreet Cultural Museum gives visitors the opportunity to explore the unique history and cultural significance of distinctively New Orleans' traditions that tourists rarely get to see. Intricate displays offer visitors insight into Jazz Funerals, Mardi Gras Indians, and Social Aid and Pleasure Clubs. Housed in a former Funeral Home in the Tremé neighborhood, the oldest African-American neighborhood in the United States, the Backstreet Cultural Museum showcases these rich New Orleans traditions with the city's largest collection of hand-made, vibrantly colored beaded and feathered Mardi Gras Indian Costumes as well as an impressive library of memorabilia, still photos, and video footage of Jazz Funerals, Second-line Parades, and backstreet Mardi Gras Celebrations.

New Orleans Jazz Museum at the Old U.S. Mint

"Historic Archives"

This Greek Revival building was first used as a U.S. and Confederate Mint in 1835 and produced money for the Federal Government until 1909. Throughout its existence it has served many purposes, including minting money and housing soldiers for the Confederate Government during the Civil War. Today, the Old U.S. Mint is home to the New Orleans Jazz Museum, with many exhibits as well as important historical archives. The mint also houses two gift shops, the Coin Vault and Louisiana Music Factory, which sell unique items. Own one of these as a remembrance of your visit!
