Angus Glen Golf Club

"Nothing Short of Tradition"

The Angus Glen Golf Club was originally bought by Arthur Strolley, who ran a cattle farm on the property. Later it became a stud farm where he bred champion thoroughbreds. It was only as late as 1992 that a golf enthusiast himself, Strolley thought of converting it into a golf course. Today it is a hub of golfing activity and a venue for championships and tournaments. They have also taken over the management of the Markham Green golf club. Sunday brunches and Winemaker's dinner dance evenings on Fridays at Angus have a huge, loyal fan following.

Copper Creek Golf Club

"Riverside Golf Course"

Located in the village of Kleinburg, a 45-minute drive away from Toronto's city limits, the Copper Creek Golf Club features rolling greens and lush fairways, making for a wonderful natural setting to play in. This 18-hole golf course offers a challenging game and an amazing practice area, besides also being equipped with a driving range. The Humber River Valley forms the backdrop for this public course, thus creating a panoramic visual treat as one proceeds to golf. After a good game, enjoy an elaborate meal at its clubhouse.
