Santorini Greek Taverna

"Authentic Greek Meals"

Very traditional authentic Greek can be found in this cozy little building on Center Street, just over the bridge and a few blocks north of downtown. On a busy night there are regular, sudden bursts of flame as diners order plates of Saganaki, an appetizer of salty Greek goat cheese fried and then lit up in a table side show. The entrees range from Souvlakis to Ortikia, which is quail broiled in red wine. The hosts at Santorini Greek Taverna will also create a three-stage series of platters that give diners a full Greek experience. The music is always going, and there may be sudden dancing and plates flying if the mood is right and the Ouzo flowing.

Aida's

"A Taste of the Mediterranean"

Aida's is a Lebanese restaurant that is perfect for a midday falafel sandwich or evening couscous feed. The menu features a large selection of traditional Middle Eastern specialties. There are also Lebanese twists on Western dishes: Aida's Caesar salad is tossed with pita chips and orange blossom water flavors the lemonade. The menu gives detailed descriptions of each dish to assist those unfamiliar with Lebanese cuisine.
