National Museum of Denmark

"A Peek Into History"

Established in 1819, the National Museum of Denmark is housed within the remarkable grandeur of The Prince's Palace. This comprehensive museum features a varied collection that spans numerous continents and significant periods in history. From ancient Stone Age relics and sacred exhibits such as the pre-historic Sun Chariot, to exhibits procured from the Renaissance and beyond, the museum's collection is truly awe-inspiring. There are also collections of ancient treasures from Egypt and the Viking Age, as well as ethnographic collections about natives. Through a spellbinding collection that speeds through varying events in time, the National Museum of Denmark lets one relive glorious moments of a long lost past.

Dansk Jødisk Museum

"Jewish Culture Museum"

Denmark has a rich Jewish heritage spanning close to 400 years, and this museum tells the story of the culture through the ages. Architect Daniel Libeskind's mind-bending museum design takes inspiration various chapters from the country's Jewish history. Winning rave accolades and an award in 2005, the design is a harmonious blend of the old and the new. Exhibits at the museum cover a broad spectrum of Jewish life starting from their immigration to the country to the influence of their culture on Danish society. Guided tours are available.
