Romantik Hotel Florhof

"Luxurious Stay"

Once upon a time, Zurich's first-ever millionaire lived in this residence. The patrician's building was then converted, in the 16th Century, into a famous hotel. This structure underwent two failed face-lifts before the Florhof as it stands today came into being in 1995. This hotel, which is often booked up for long periods, sets a great deal of emphasis on comfort and contentment; all the rooms have an English-country decor, expertly sidestepping the danger of appearing kitschy. The boldly-patterned floral curtains and elegant, striped armchairs reinforce the image of the Florhof as an oasis of all things romantic. It is under a protection order for its historical value.

Dolder Grand Hotel

"Height of Luxury"

The Dolder Grand Hotel opened its doors in 1899 and is now considered to be one of Switzerland's best hotels. Set right on the edge of the woods, it could not be considered all that central but is wonderfully peaceful. The wedding cake-like building with its charming romantic turrets sits above the town in a sort of majesty, affording a fabulous view over Zurich. In this hotel, the notion of 'customer as king' is no illusion. The fact that the hotel's own golf course (for which a handicap is obligatory) was in the swing of things as early as 1907, speaks volumes. The rooms and suites are very generous in size; rather than being garish and over-extravagant, they ooze chic understated elegance, with soft colors and comfortable bourgeois-style furniture creating a stylish setting. For those seeking some entertainment out on the town, the 'Dolder Bus' runs into the town center and is free to hotel guests (M-Sa).

Hotel Sedartis

"Elegant, Cozy and Charming"

Hotel Sedartis is a modern version of the traditional Hotel Thalwilerhof which was demolished in the Summer of 2002. This stylish hotel's vantage points are the state-of-the-art business facilities coupled with the traditional gourmet delights at its fine dining restaurant. Hotel Sedartis also houses a well-stocked bar and an elegant bistro which serves amazing antipasti and salad buffet. The building is a fine example of European art and is symbolic of the Feng Shui practice of arrangement of space. If that doesn't impress much, you can always marvel at the panoramic view of Lake Zurich. You sure wouldn't regret your decision.
