Barley House

"John Barleycorn's Joint"

Barley is one of the grains most commonly used to malt both beer and whiskey, so it's a fine source for a bar's name. The Barley House pub in downtown Cleveland offers a variety of draft beers and ciders, as well as bar whiskeys (and other alcohol) in addition to a robust menu. Some Irish pub staples are available, such as Fish & Chips or Shepherd's Pie with sirloin steak and vegetables. But there are also some surprises, such as a Panini Melt or Tropical Chicken Salad. Vegetarians have a few options, such as the Barley House Salad, Irish Pita Nachos, or Gourmet Mac & Cheese.
