Mill City Farmers' Market

"Puts The 'Unity' In Community"

The annual Mill City Farmers' Market is an initiative by the local community, for the local community. Taking place between the Mill City Museum and the Guthrie Theater, the Farmers' Market showcases the variety and quality of locally grown produce, all of which is organic and thus helps create awareness about self-sustainability and an eco-friendly lifestyle. There are plenty of inter actives to choose from over the 5 month period, ranging from lessons in cooking with fresh ingredients to visits to nearby museums. Keep checking their website for the Saturday programs and events, something is bound to catch your fancy!

Saint Paul Farmers' Market

"A St. Paul tradition"

Established in 1853 and originally housed in a two-story brick building, St. Paul's first public market stayed open year round. Operated by the St. Paul Growers' Association, Inc., the current Saint Paul Farmers' Market is open seasonally and includes many satellite locations throughout the Twin Cities. The main downtown market has been at its current location since 1982. Used as a parking lot during the off-season, this quaint covered market still caters to all who crave freshness. From 167 open-air stalls, local growers offer items including apples, broccoli, eggs, honey, jellies, pumpkins, soaps, syrup, tomatoes and much more. Prices vary, since each grower is independently offering their products to the public. Å
