The Common

"A Blend Of The Old & New"

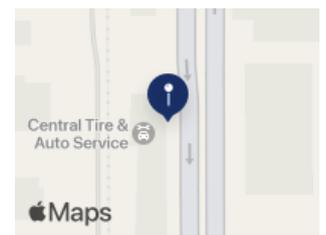

This Downtown Edmonton gastro-pub has gained popularity since its opening in 2009. The Common's bifold approach as a daytime restaurant and a vibrant lounge by night has been well received by locals. The seasonal menu by chef Jesse Morrison-Gauthier includes bestselling dishes like tandoori calamari, short rib, and chicken and waffles. Their bar has an extensive list of domestic and international beers, craft brews, cocktails and wines. Enjoy their happy hours with a pint or two and groove to live music at this eclectic resto-bar.

SugarBowl

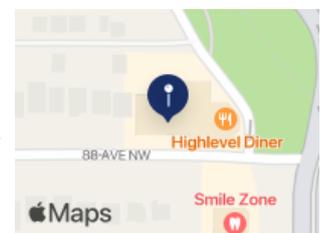

"Community Hangout"

SugarBowl has been a mainstay on the Edmonton dining front since 1943. This bistro is open all day and serves delicious bistro classics with a contemporary touch. Complement your selection with one of 160 craft beers and Belgian taps, or wine or coffee. Their world-famous cinnamon buns deserve a special mention. In the summer, their patio is your best bet to enjoy the great weather and local city scene.

Duggan's Boundary Irish Pub

"An Upbeat Bar"

Don't be surprised if you forget you are still in Edmonton as soon as you walk into the hip Duggan's Boundary Irish Pub. Set in a homey space, with a cheerful wait staff and a friendly crowd, the pub has a convivial, laid-back atmosphere typical of Irish pubs. Soups, sandwiches, pies, stews and pizzas are the dishes on offer for those who begin to feel a bit famish. The best time to visit is during happy hours when you can enjoy great deals on both food and drink. They also host Half Priced Pizza Wednesdays and Wine Nights. If you decide to try out this place, keep a look out for their open mic or game nights when the pub is transformed into a festive place, packed to the brim with fun, enthusiastic people. So come have a drink, spend time with your friends, or make new ones - the pub can turn any evening into a fantastic memory.
