Alley's General Store

"Quintessential New England Store"

Alley's General Store has been in business since 1858 and is on the list of historic sites of the Martha's Vineyard Preservation Trust as the oldest operating retailer on the island. You can get everything from fishing lures to freshly prepared meals at this popular, local hangout. Relax on the front porch benches or get a bite to eat around the back.

Larry Hepler Furniture

"Beautifully Hand Crafted Furniture"

A piece of furniture from the Hepler gallery will be treasured for generations. Each piece is made from selected high-quality wood and guaranteed for the lifetime of the original owner. The furniture is durable, unlike what you find in many furniture chains. The owner, Larry Hepler, moved to the Vineyard and began making furniture over 15 years ago. You will have the honor of owning a hand-crafted original that is sure to compliment any room. Many clients play a role in the creation process. Each piece is signed, dated and numbered for authenticity. The team of craftsmen designs everything from rocking chairs and dressers to tables. Each piece is available in cherry or maple, or more expensive black walnut or teak. Make sure to call ahead because this gallery is by appointment only.

Bunch of Grapes Bookstore

"Local Literary Haven"

Corporate America has yet to come to Martha's Vineyard, and the pleasant result is an assortment of locally-owned shops such as this gem of a bookstore. Bunch of Grapes carries best selling titles as well as hard-to-find selections. You'll get personal attention from friendly staff willing to share their literary wisdom and offer suggestions. Pulitzer Prize winners and other famous authors have been on the schedule in the past.
