Bai Mai Thai

"Relaxing Thai Restaurant"

This East Side Detroit restaurant is known for its tranquil atmosphere and authentic Thai offerings. Decorated in a decidedly Thai-style theme, Bai Mai features comfortable wooden booths, handmade decorations adorning the walls. The dimly lit dining room featuring hushed reds and browns, offers a perfectly serene environment for a peaceful meal. With Thai music playing softly in the background, and the relaxing sound of an in-house waterfall, it's easy to forget about the hectic world outside. Make sure to try the tom yum goong (Thai sweet and sour soup with shrimp), a house specialty. If you've ever been to Thailand, you'll know that Thais love this soup, so if a Thai restaurant has good tom yum, you can be sure that the rest of the food is up to par; Bai Mai passes this test!

Sala Thai Restaurant

"Thai Flavors"

For the flavors of Thailand in a warm, inviting atmosphere, check out Sala Thai in Eastern Market. Hungry visitors to this restaurant inside an old fire station are greeted with a menu full of classic Thai dishes as well as some specialties. Sala Thai is also very popular with the takeout crowd because of its location downtown near Eastern Market, and of course the delicious food. The servers are always happy to recommend dishes if you're finding yourself overwhelmed by choices.

Bangkok Cafe

"Taste of Thailand"

Located in the heart of Ferndale, Bangkok Cafe has been serving up delicious Thai food to Metro Detroit for a good number of years. So popular is Bangkok Cafe that over the years they have won an impressive number of "Best Of" awards. The restaurant seats only a limited number of guests at a time, however the wait for the food is definitely worth the time, patience and money.
