Schramm's Meadery

"All Things Mead"

Mead is one of the oldest forms of alcohol, it has been found as residue in vessels that date before 6000 BCE. Despite its period of longevity in human history, mead is fairly rare to encounter while out on the town. But the people who live in the Detroit area can go to Schramm's Meadery to sample some. The mead-makers have performed extensive research to find out what ingredients will produce the best mead, and they even grow many of their own fruits used to make the nectar. So, if you're interested in sampling this age-old beverage, check out Schramm's Meadery.
