A family-friendly Italian restaurant, Bella Monica is great for those who want to enjoy a hearty Italian meal in casual environs. The artwork adorned walls, peppy music and fine Italian wines sets the mood for a pleasant dining experience. The simple, homestyle food follows traditional recipes and is a delight to the taste buds. Shrimp Napoli, Pomodoro Bruschetta and Portobello & Sundried Tomato Lasagne are just some of the decadent delicacies on offer. Besides the array of Italian delicacies, flatbread and pizzas, the restaurant also serves up great gluten-free fare. Mami Nora's Rotisserie Chicken

"Peruvian Style"

Mami Nora's offers Peruvian-style rotisserie chicken in a fun and friendly atmosphere. The restaurant's roasting method, using wood charcoal, house marinade, and Peruvian ovens, makes the place quite popular. It's nice to know that the chickens are steroid and hormone free, and the produce used in the restaurant is usually brought from a local farmer's market. Chickens are available in quarter, half, and whole sizes. They pair well with plantains and yucca fries. You can wash everything down with the purple corn chicha morada drink, and celebrate the finish with caramel flan.

Big Ed's City Market Restaurant

"Hearty Breakfast & Lunch"

This is home-style Southern cooking in its purest form. Some breakfast items include the thickest biscuits coupled with the finest sausage gravy and plate-sized pancakes, while some others like the Fried Cajun Chicken Breast and Fried Egg Burgers are a big hit with locals. If you come in for lunch and find barbecued chicken on the menu, you are in luck. Also, an added bonus is that this cozy eatery looks like the inside of a Southern kitchen, with pots, pans and other odd paraphernalia scattered for effect. Big Ed's only accepts cash, so come prepared.
