Raleigh Beer Garden

"Beery Love"

For cerevisaphiles (ardent beer lovers), Raleigh Beer Garden is heaven. Touted to be the largest draft beer selection in an establishment in the planet, it boasts 366 taps of craft brew. The brainchild of Niall Hanley, a local restaurateur, it spans across three floors with patios and a rooftop. Built with the wood of pecan trees that stood on the site of the bar, it has a lovely rustic look to it. To get a taste of North Carolina beers, head to the first floor bar which features 144 taps. There is also a cocktail corner called the Spiritual. It serves specialty cocktails made from premium distilled beverages. The second level has the remaining 222 taps flowing with beer from all over the world. Some stouts are served through nitro taps for a creamier and smoother texture. You can check their dynamic beer selection real time on their video screens since there is no printed menu. Unwind at the rooftop bar with a herb garden if you want a bit of an outdoor experience. Nosh on tasty snack while you enjoy a pint or two.

The Raleigh Times Bar

"Ode to the City"

The Raleigh Times is housed in a restored century-old building, and celebrates local history with news clippings and images clipped to its walls. Stepping into the bar is like stepping into Raleigh's past, when papers were hawked on street corners and watering holes were only for whiskey. The Times' menu features creative takes on classic pub fare, and an extensive beer selection with a focus on Belgian ales. The second-floor deck seating has the best views of downtown Raleigh.
