Peter Cat

"Waiting to be Served"

Situated opposite Maharaja, Peter Cat dates back to the 1960s and is one of the first restaurants to feature in the Park Street restaurant hub. The decor and the staff project the bygone era and the restaurant maintains its long-standing reputation of quality till date. A queue outside the white stucco facade of this restaurant is not an unusual sight; with space being the most pressing problem of the eatery, guests are frequently forced to wait on the pavement outside. Once you're inside, be prepared to brush a few shoulders as you make your way through the narrow aisles between the tables. Also, make sure you place your order quickly as it takes a long time for it to get to your table; but once it does, there is no way you will regret waiting for it! The restaurant features preparations from the Indian and Continental cuisines. The Cello Kebab here is legendary and would be the most recommended dish on the menu. The restaurant also serves a variety of cocktails and has an impressive wine list too. Remember: if the queue at Peter Cat is too much for you to handle, you can always turn the corner and walk to Moulin Rouge or Mocambo.

Anchorage Tavern Lounge

"Anchored to the Hooghly"

If you want to be taken away from the hustle and bustle of the city, this is a quiet little haven where premium malts and wines can be sampled and experienced in pure leisure. Situated within The Floatel, the Anchorage Tavern Lounge maintains a charming cruise-line ambiance: while the view of the Hooghly River is a constant reminder, there are also various artifacts, like the steering wheel on the ceiling, that add to this unique setup. The seating arrangement consists of wooden barrels with glass tops as tables and large black sofas. Apart from the premium spirits, you could also try some of the cocktails and mocktails that do not fail to please. Choose from the various Kebabs on offer to go with your drink, get a table at the open-air deck, and a good evening is bound to ensue.

The Big Ben

"London Calling"

No, its not a clock tower, but the only traditional British pub that the city has to offer. Head to this bar in The New Kenilworth, which in itself has a strictly Colonial ambiance, and get tanked up on a variety of British ales and beers. True to its promise, the establishment comes with dart boards and a pool table. And if you're wondering about the finger foods, Big Ben has plenty, including the fried variety that is so necessary for a pub of this kind. Singles will particularly enjoy sitting at the bar which is simply extravagant!
