Restaurant Pfistermühle

"Bavarian Delights"

An exquisite restaurant in Altstadt, Restaurant Pfistermühle offers traditional German cuisine that is redefined and customized to suit today's palate. The restaurant has four vaults which date back to the 16th century and gives the restaurant a touch of the old-world charm. The food is a bit pricey but is definitely worth the experience. Some must-tries include the Goat cheese-pear tartelette, the Roasted saddle of veal and the Bavarian ox fillet from the grill. Enjoy sipping a glass of wine or try one of their specialty beers with the sumptuous meal at this exquisite restaurant.

Hofbräuhaus

"Munich's Best Known Beer Hall"

This famous pub draws people from all over the globe. Its unique charm comes from Bavarian music and its notable architecture, which attests to its history. Tasteful beer and schmankerl complete the offer at this lively beer hall. In the summertime, locals head towards its wonderful courtyard, while the Festsaal room hosts a Bavarian evening with music every night, which costs a few Euros for admission. The meals and beer are perfect for a group of friends. Established in the 16th Century, this has become a local landmark. Any trip to Munich will be incomplete without a visit to Hofbräuhaus.

Ratskeller

"German Dining Experience"

Housed in the basement of the gothic Town Hall building in the heart of Munich, Ratskeller is a good place to stop by for a sumptuous lunch or a leisurely romantic dinner. The menu is solely inspired by traditional Bavarian cuisine, so you can sample some really great local dishes which are interspersed on the lengthy menu. If you're a first-timer then go for the Ratskeller Potatosoup, Nuremberg Style Bratwurst, Schweinebraten, Entenbraten or Beef Goulasch. Pair the food with German beer and wine, and round it off with a helping of something sweet. The cellar's arched ceilings and woodwork add to the charming ambiance as do the sounds of soft Bavarian melodies.

Bratwurstherzl

"Nuremberg Sausages As They Should Be"

Although many people don't know it, Nuremberg's grilled sausages also feature in Bavarian cuisine. This atmospheric restaurant with old vaulted rooms (renovated in 1994), prepares the Franconian sausages in a traditional manner. The sausages are grilled on an open wooded fire and are served accompanied by cabbage and fresh horseradish. No doubts that the beer here is excellent, and is freshly poured into your glass from a wooden barrel on-site! Other Bavarian specialties here include freshly baked pretzels and Franconian wines. Hot meals are available until 9.30p.

Augustiner am Dom

"Bavarian Delights with Beer"

Augustiner am Dom is a popular tourist haunt that serves generous servings of traditional Bavarian fare with fresh frothy beer. Delicious classics like the Bavarian loaf and roasted pork becken are great choices for food lovers. The inner courtyard houses a Beer Garden, where one could enjoy freshly brewed beers. Set right next to the Frauenkirche, it is easy to locate.

Palais Keller

"Taste Some Bavarian"

The sturdy vaults of the Palais Keller were originally used to store salt, and they date back to 1425. Today, the Palais is a favored destination when one visits the Hotel Bayerischer Hof in Munich. Get a real taste of Bavaria with their famed beers right from the keg, and order some pretzels to go alongside. They also offer a variety of Bavarian specials from the court bakery, along with some national and regional favorites and specialties.

Cafe Frischhut Schmalznudel

"Early Opener"

Situated on Viktualienmarkt and open from 8a, this café is renowned for its breakfast. The most popular dish is the Auszog'nen, a Bavarian speciality which consists of balls of yeast dough, fried in lard and pulled apart in the middle so that a thick ring of dough forms around the outside. The whole thing is then sprinkled with sugar dust. For those who are really famished, several other nourishing hot dishes are available. If you're planning to celebrate with a large group, then it is recommended to arrive early as the café and the upper floor fill up pretty quickly.

Halali

"Fresh from The Forest"

This traditional Munich restaurant, founded in the 19th Century, offers its clientèle cultivated ambiance and high-quality Bavarian cuisine. The wooden-paneled rooms decorated with hunting trophies make the perfect backdrop for Chef Hubert Buckl's game and meat specialties. The stuffed oxtail and the legendary mini black pudding are particularly recommended. The Blut- und Leberwurst is also one of the most talked about items on the menu which consists of secret spices that entice the taste-buds. The wine list is extensive, and the service exemplary.

Wirtshaus in der Au

"In the Heart of Munich"

A comfortable and typically Bavarian beer garden, Wirtshaus in der Au is also one of the most famous restaurants in Munich. Although its furnishings are contemporary in style, it still retains all the charm of traditional Bavaria, serving the original Munich Schweinsbraten mit Kruste (roast pork and crackling). A popular feature here are their dumplings, which they claim are the largest in the city. The clientele is in fact a good cross section of Munich's population, as the venue is popular with local residents, business people, students and the hip and trendy.

Chinesischer Turm

"Historic Beer Garden"

The tower which gave its name to the beer garden was built in 1789 as a viewing point and bandstand in the heart of the English Garden. Unfortunately, what we see today is only a reconstruction, as the original was destroyed in 1944. However, the musical connections have remained. There are over 7000 seats at Chinesischer Turm, where customers can relax and enjoy a Mass (a liter of beer). Tradition permits you to bring your own food along, but the food is quite decent and is sure to leave you satisfied.

Bogenhäuser Hof

"Subtle French Influence"

Bogenhäuser offers substantial, high-quality fare in pleasant surroundings. You will detect a subtle French influence in the fish, poultry and main dishes, all of which are meticulously prepared. The emphasis is on traditional cuisine. Main courses starts with the highly recommended turbot fish, while an impressive wine list accompanies the scrumptious fare. Regular patrons include business people, Munich dignitaries and the city's well-heeled bunch. Housed in a 19th-century villa, this esteemed restaurant is renowned for being awarded with three 'fork and spoon' ratings in the 2011 Michelin Guide. Reservations are recommended.

Kaisergarten

"A Slice of Bavaria"

Not very far from Leopold street, Kaisergarten is a great place to soak up Bavarian culture. While the indoor dining space is a cozy spot to relax and unwind, the leafy garden area, dappled in sun, invites revelers to taste authentic Bavarian food and chug on regional beer. The Wiener Schnitzel and the Kaiserschmarrn (Austrian dessert) are surely to be tried. A sublime ambiance, jolly staff, gorgeous Bavarian food and a reasonably priced menu, are all what make this eatery a desirable dining spot.

Augustiner Bräustuben

"Bavarian Dine & Drinks"

The Augustiner Bräustuben, situated right by the historic Augustiner Brewery, is as yet undiscovered by tourists, and the atmosphere among the students and regulars who patronize the pub is much more typical of a local hangout than the other touristy establishments nearby. The décor is simple and rustic, and the hearty food is inexpensive yet delicious. From soups and grilled specialties, to elaborate Bavarian breakfasts and freshly baked goods, this local restaurant and beer hall offers a heavenly slice of Bavaria at its busy establishment. Celebrate some of your most special gatherings at their space.

Alter Wirt Ramersdorf

"Beer Garden Exotica"

The origin of Alter Wirt Ramersdorf goes back to 1504 in the history of time. A traditional beer garden, this gem of a restaurant enjoys a peaceful location. The outstretched patio is hidden under a camouflage of chestnut trees. Alter Wirt Ramersdorf features the traditional beers of Löwenbräu and Franziskaner Weißbier which are as German you can get in all of Bavaria. The spare ribs, Entenjagd (a small duck portion) or the Schnitzel Wiener Art are the perfect dishes to try out. The rustic charm here is evident, coupled with a pleasantness of an open ambiance and a friendly staff.

Asam-Schlössl Maria Einsiedel

"Grandiose aristocratic house"

This was once the home and studio of Cosmas Damian Asam, an important painter of the late baroque period. The facade of the Asamschlößl is a rare example of the sort which was once so widespread in Munich. The painter acquired the estate in 1724, added a studio and started to decorate the facade with his work. At the time, the grounds also included buildings for the workers, a geometrically designed garden and a chapel built by his brother Egid Quirin. The house was rebuilt after the War by Schleich and the paintings on its facade restored. Quality regional cuisine has been served here at reasonable prices since 1993. The dining rooms are traditional and comfortable, comprising the Tirol Room, a lounge with a clay oven and a beautiful garden. Celebrities from the nearby film studios in Geiseltasteig are regular guests here.

Alter Wirt Moosach

"Delightful Tavern"

Renovated and reopened in 2008, Alter Wirt Moosach is situated in a location that once housed the oldest tavern in the city. This traditional inn delights guests with its authentic Bavarian fare. Visit this restaurant to taste executive chef Franz Hash's creative concoctions that blend international flavors into traditional recipes. A menu of sausages, roast pork, duck and various cheese and vegetable preparations are available to accompany your beer or wine. The best time to visit this place is on the first Friday when guests can participate in cultural events hosted here: concerts, cabaret, book readings and more.
