Sababa

"Delicious Quick Bites & Lebanese!"

Sababa is one of the neighborhood favorites for sure. This food stand offers limited seating and ample standing area. The tasty and authentic Lebanese dishes consists of falafel, pita bread, tzatziki, tahini, hummous, falafel patties, two types of kraut and lots more. The Shawarma pita sandwiches are simply amazing. This is a great place for fast food and for food on the go. For more information, check out the website.

My Indigo

"Healthy Fast Food"

My Indigo is a small chain of restaurants serving mainly Asian food. Catering to both vegetarians and carnivores, you can enjoy a tasty meal served instantly, knowing there are some positive nutrients in your dish! Curries come with either cous cous or rice (or both), and the portions are perfect for lunch or a light early dinner. A range of soft drinks, coffee, plus the winter warmer chai latte are on the beverage board. This branch is really handy for shoppers too, as it's located in a newly refurbished shopping center right next to the main high street of Munich.

Bergwolf

"Late Night Munchies!"

The line snakes out the door all night long and party-goers in need of regenerative calories crowd the entryway hoarding paper trays of the Bergwolf's specialty, Currywurst, a large sausage cut into bite-sized pieces and smothered in a curry ketchup sauce. Vegetarians can go for the piping hot French fries smothered in ketchup and mayonnaise, called "Rotweiß" (red/white), and those watching their waistline can order the 'Jogger's' version: without mayo. If you can fight through the crowd, the back of the restaurant is a cozy, dimly lit setting with a larger selection of drinks, simple wooden tables, and the same yummy snacks brought right to your table, but only if you can find a seat.
