À la Mort Subite

"Charming Cafe With Quirky Name"

À la Mort Subite, which translates to 'Sudden Death', is a strange name for a delightful 19th Century café. But Mort Subite is a famous Brussels beer (now owned by Scottish & Newcastle Breweries) and also the name of a 19th-century dice game played by local employees during their lunch break, adding some context to the establishment's name. The interior has remained unchanged and, so it seems, have the staff. Long wooden benches, high ceilings and an array of mirrors are part of the café's charm. The clientele is mixed, basic snacks are served, and the prices are reasonable.

Le Coq

"Cool Pub, Hot Music"

Le Coq, located in downtown Brussels, is one of the most welcoming dive bars in the city. This cafe-pub has a warm and vibrant crowd with a taste for great music. The informal atmosphere is refreshing. Coq is loved by its clientele, and is a major hub for tourists as well, especially during high-profile music concerts held here.

Toogenblik

"Sweet Thee Tunes in Here"

Unlike the other hole in the wall bars and nightclubs where music is simply in the background, at Toogenblik the music is the main attraction. The music is a fusion of contemporary and classic and the musicians are an eclectic mix. So here you might as well hear a note from one of Bach's symphonies easily fused into post-modern jazz or rock and still find it cool. Apart from Wednesdays, the place is also open on Fridays when a concert is scheduled.
