

"Best Food on a Budget in Barcelona"

Created by: Cityseeker

📍 11 Locations Bookmarked

📷 by jeffreyw

Ca l'Estevet

"Family Restaurant"

This El Raval restaurant has been celebrated for over a century by locals and visitors. The Estevet family welcomes patrons into their warm restaurant with open arms and a big smile. The decor is simple and clean with dark mahogany wood and white table cloths. The generous portions, classic Catalan dishes and the ambiance make Ca l'Estevet a great choice for lunch or dinner. Lunch service is a big hit with the surrounding businesses and locals so be sure to get in early or prepare to wait.

📞 +34 93 302 41 86

📍 Calle de Valldonzella 46, Barcelona

📷 by Jorge Franganillo

Bacoa

"Best Burger In BCN"

Bacoa's philosophy is as unpretentious as their delectable burger renditions. Tucked away in a building within stumbling distance of the iconic Cathedral, the space is small and minus ample seating, yet a popular choice among locals and tourists. A hit for the American palate, the menu boasts contemporary takes on the timeless favorite. From the classic kind to Japanese hamburgers with teriyaki sauce, large appetites would appreciate the double-meat variety. The freshly-grilled fillings are made from organic ingredients and layered in homemade buns while topped with signature sauces, for a meal that is worth the wait.

📞 +34 93 268 9548

📍 carrer Colomines 2, Barcelona

📷 by Suzette - www.suzette.nu from Arnhem, Netherlands

Cat Bar

"A Catty Vegan Paradise!"

Right from the cat-themed memorabilia strewn (and drawn) all over the premises to its all-vegan nature, everything about Cat Bar grabs your attention. This strictly-vegan theme is not limited to the food, but also extends to the libations. The all-day breakfasts are a hit, as are other menu items like vegan quiches, cakes, tortillas, burgers and more. The free W-Fi is yet another drawing card. Reservations are not accepted.

📞 +34 93 295 6815

🌐 www.catbar.es/

✉ CatBarCat@gmail.com

📍 Carrer Boria 17, Barcelona

📷 by Juan J. Martinez from Valencia, España

Elisabets

"Tantalizing Flavors"

This tiny restaurant, nestled on El Raval's Elisabets street, is an ideal place to gorge on traditional Catalan cuisine at reasonable rates. Named after the street it is located on Elisabets offers sumptuous homemade meals, that taste like they are straight out of a grandmother's kitchen. Choose from the daily changing pre-fixe menu to taste some of the best offerings of this place. Maintaining a rustic charm, this place is embellished with antique furniture, while old radio sets adorn the walls. Fill your pockets with change while visiting this restaurant, as they do not accept credit cards.

+34 93 317 5826

Carrer d' Elisabets 2-4, Barcelona

by Public Domain

Chen Ji

"As Authentic As It Can Get"

Bustling with Chinese expats, Chen Ji is among the best place for a taste of authentic Chinese in the area. A no-frills eatery, their generously delicious portions and cheap prices have made a hit among locals. If you get confused by their extensive menu, just asked their servers for some help. You can be sure that everything is fresh and tastes good. Some of their popular items include the noodles, xiao long bao (pan dumplings), fried rice and Peking duck. Complement your meal with some Chinese beer.

+34 93 247 6831

Carrer d'Alí Bei 65, Barcelona

by Public Domain

Bodega la Plata

"Tapas Please"

Nestled down in one of Barcelona's medieval and winding streets you will find Bodega la Plata. The bodega is popular among the locals and has yet to become a tourist trap for travelers looking to eat like Spaniards. The menu offers tapas dishes and are most famous for their fried sardines and tomato salad. The restaurant is cozy with over-crowded seating but is a perfect stop for a mid-day bite or post-dinner drink. The wine is cheap and always flowing.

+34 93 315 10 09

barlaplata.com/

Calle Merce 28, El Barri Gòtic, Barcelona

by Public Domain

Bar Ramon

"Scrumptious Small Plates"

Bar Ramon is one of the best places to enjoy quintessential tapas while soaking in good rock music. A lively spot explored by locals and tourists alike, this tapas restaurant is a perfect representation of the city's culture. Bustling with energy till late in the night, the dining room is filled with tempting aromas of dishes like the garlic-flavored prawns, foie gras-infused steak, meat balls, rabbit ribs, plates of Jamón ibérico, cheeses and more. Complete with a glass or two of their popular wine, this tapas paradise gives you a slice out of every local's life. This one place that should feature on every gourmand's itinerary while touring Barcelona.

+34 93 325 0283

barramon.dudaone.com/

Carrer del Comte Borrell 81, Barcelona

Xurreria J. Argiles

"Fried, Doughy Goodness"

After tapas and paella, churro represent Spain's food culture in a nutshell. A delicious, deep-fried pastry that has become a part of people's everyday life, churro are sold across the city, but Xurreria J. Argiles stands as a local favorite. Open around the clock on weekends, this is the place to devour this traditional sweet snack with a hot cup of gooey chocolate while soaking in the city's beauty. Explored by tired travelers for a sweet detour during the day and by party goers for a mid-night binge, Xurreria J. Argiles is the city's sweet spot that one must not miss.

+34 93 232 4307

Carrer de la Marina 107, Barcelona

by Oh Barcelona

Buenas Migas

"Good Crumbs"

If you need to have the best focaccia in town, walk into Buenas Migas. Focaccia is traditionally enjoyed by fishermen with wine, but now it is a local specialty in Spain. This place does out just that with an Italian touch to it. They also serve up delicious homemade breads along with cappuccinos, pastries and other Italian dishes. The place is very warm and inviting with a woody decor. The quality is as high as everything cooked at home. Come by and be part of tradition!

+34 93 221 6316

www.buenasmigas.com/

Plaça del Mar 1, Barcelona

by wuestenigel

Himali

"Traditional Himalayan"

Presenting a mix of Himalayan cuisine from Nepal and India, Himali is your best bet for traditional fare from the Himalayan slopes, in the tropical weather of Barcelona. Their fixed menus give one a taste of the best they have to offer, while one can also order off the cart and go for particular specialities such as momos, basmati rice and vegetables. The interiors are simple, as food and flavour is their main point of focus.

+34 93 638 0614

Carrer de Milà i Fontanals 60, Barcelona

by Flan_-_Vic.jpg: Javier Leiva from Manlleu, Barcelonaderivative work: Lobo (howl?)

La Llar de Foc

"Plethora of Local Flavors"

In a humble setting, La Llar de Foc serves delicious local food that has earned quite a reputé among diverse patrons. The place has a welcoming interior and its furnished to accommodate groups thus presenting itself as a great spot for family dinners and group outings. The food menu is creative with a number of seafood, meat as well as poultry and vegetarian dishes waiting to delight your palate. Everything on the menu is scrumptious but regulars opt for the anchovies and cheese laden toast as appetizers then move on to the famous lasagna or try the steak. Lastly, the flan completes your meal on a sweet note.

+34 93 284 1025

lallardefoc.com/

Carrer de Ramón y Cajal 13, Barcelona

JOIN US AT:

cityseeker.com