Brunch & Cake

"¿Torrijas?"

Brunch & Cake is an outlet from the popular city bakery called Cup & Cake only here they sell more salads than they do at C&C. Nevertheless, this cafe has Scandinavian decor with wooden and white colors spread throughout and their brunch menu varies between brioche, bagels, pancakes, pizza and more. For dessert, the kitchen offers cupcakes of course, and they even have a patio where you can take them and eat. It's definitely one of the most popular places in the Eixample neighborhood. Don't forget to try a Torrija (bread soaked in honey and milk) before you leave, and you will surely return.

Hänsel

"Hänsel's Delicacies"

Hänsel is known for their baked goods, desserts and artisan breads. Everyone loves this place for their Madeleines, cured meats and fresh fruit juice that is offered every day. Stay for breakfast or lunch while you sip on a nice, bubbly glass of Cava. The place is not too big, but the modern ambiance and aromas that leave the oven make it one of the best cafes in the Eixample neighborhood.

Ugot

"A Delightful Spot"

Ugot is an endearing cafe beckoning an eclectic patronage owing to their charming interior and delicious displays of baked delights. The cafe has a quiet ambiance and it's decked in vintage paraphernalia that adds personality to this place. Exposed-brick walls, yellow lights and a wallpaper decorated with flamingos, together create a wonderful ambiance to enjoy delectable poached eggs, burgers, french toasts and king-size slices of cakes.

Granja Elena

"One-time bar"

Come here to relish atypical, local traditional fare. Dishes worth a mention are cannelloni with foie gras and truffle béchamel sauce and mollusks with leeks and onion cream. The venue's humble beginning as a bar-cum-breakfast joint has not kept it from success: it is now a fully-refurbished, top-notch dining spot. Expect courteous service, even if you are unfamiliar with the menu. This is one restaurant that ensures a comeback!
