Bar Lobo

"As You Like It"

Bar Lobo is a funky haunt which can be a café, restaurant and even a late-night bar depending on when one visits it. A minimalistic décor of stainless steel bar stools and low couches combined with a laid-back ambiance add to the charm of this place. Guests can enjoy the pleasant weather seated in the spacious terrace while experimenting with the menu which boasts of sandwiches, pasta, salads and rice dishes. This place is quite a favorite with party people in their 20s and 30s who enjoy the music by the in-house DJ who spins Spanish favorites and a lot of U2. A must-visit for its sheer versatility.

Dos Cielos

"Sensory Experience"

Right at the outset, Dos Cielos, perched on the 24th level of the cutting-edge Meliá Barcelona Sky, will take your breath away. Having garnered widespread acclaim and awards for the contemporary techniques, the celebrated chef duo of Sergio and Javier Torres bring their signature style to the kitchen. Some of the delightful menu offerings include Gastrovac Cod, Octopus and Seaweed salad and Scallops with Prat Artichokes. The restaurant's obsession with quality ingredients is reflected in their organic herb garden on the hotel's rooftop. The open kitchen offers an excellent opportunity to watch your dishes being crafted, though you might find it difficult to look away from the spectacular city views in the first place. Settle down on the outdoor terrace for a breathtaking experience of floating over the city as you dine.

Tram-Tram

"French-Spanish fusion"

If you need to impress your date, this is just the place to go! The pretty terrace garden sports festive lights, decorative plants and a charming setting for a memorable dining experience. Chef Isidre Soler puts his skills to the test, artfully serving up the best Catalan-French cuisine from his kitchen to each of his distinguished patrons. Dishes worth a mention include the Pheasant Consommé with foie gras and truffle, sea bass lasagne with seasonal mushrooms and white rosemary butter, and the unique caramelized poached egg with Port. If open-air dining is not your style, the private dining rooms on the lower level provide an intimate option.

Can Travi Nou

"Historic Spanish Farmhouse"

Can Travi Nou is nestled in a mythical mansion that dates back to the 17th Century. This Spanish castle is adorned with a vertical floral garden and fairy lights, with earthy tones and charming furnishing on the inside. The menu represents Catalan gastronomy with a hint of contemporary Mediterranean influence. Start off with spinach salad blended with bacon, pine nuts, Roquefort cheese and ice cream, and savor mains like Codfish Timbale au Graten, and Duck Confit served with decadent sides. They feature several dining spaces, each unique in design, that are available on hire for business luncheons, parties, weddings and events.
