La Manual Alpargatera

"Shoes Made For The Pope"

From humble beginnings in the 1940s, the unassuming La Manual Alpargatera now makes it to most tourists' itineraries. On sale are affordable, handmade and customized versions of traditional Spanish footwear like the espadrille and espadenya, once solely a peasant-gear. Stacks of these classics in vibrant colors and styles from the Pyrenees don the wooden shelves of this locally-owned store. From the casual slip-on kind to wedge-heeled renditions, this wardrobe essential has attracted high-profile clientele including Michael Douglas as well as the Pope.

Nu Sabates

"Cydwoq Footwear"

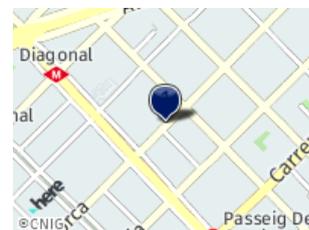

The idea for Nu Sabates was coined whilst window shopping in New York. On stumbling upon a quaint shoe boutique specializing in Cydwoq footwear, the owners aspired to bring the unique trend to the streets of Barcelona. Rafi Balouzian is the creative force behind the timeless style. Having come from a family of shoe makers, Balouzian was exposed to leather artistry at a young age and grew up in the ancestral factory. Handmade from the finest Italian leather and dyed with natural pigments, select from a plethora of fashionable designs for men and women. Personalize your pair with your choice of leather from 100 varieties and expect them in no more than three weeks.

Cristina Castañer

"Affordable Class & Style"

Well known in the fashion world, the shoes produced by Christina Castañer embody Spanish style. This small boutique can be found in the Sant Gervasi neighborhood of Barcelona and while these shoes can be found in many stores around Spain, it is much more fun to slip into home store. The best part about shopping at Christina Castañer is that while you will walk away with an amazing pair of shoes, your wallet won't feel the pain.
