Ae Oche

"Good Pizza, Good Prizes"

Ae Oche serves typical Venetian pizzas at traditional prices. This is one of the few restaurants in Venice where you can eat until late. There are about 100 different types of pizza to choose from, so, no matter how fussy one is about their preference here you will find something for every taste. These freshly baked pizzas are enormous in sizes and high on taste. In addition to pizzas, the place serves delectable pastas and seafood dishes. Located near the train station, it attracts many patrons from outside of the city too.

Pizza al Volo

"Pocket-Friendly Pizza"

A hidden gem of Dorsoduro, Pizza Al Volo is one of Venice's best kept secrets. Offering authentic, scrumptious pizza pies, this small eatery is notoriously famous for its tasty offerings. The place is almost a blink-n-miss, but once eaten here, you'd want to keep returning, for its unbeatable staples and the rock-bottom prices! Generous proportions, traditional recipes, extremely pocket-friendly prices and a warm, friendly service make Pizza Al Volo such a winner, even without a five-star ambiance and plush interiors. Definitely worth a try!

Al Nono Risorto

"Characteristic Venetian Pizzeria"

Al Nono Risorto, an old pizzeria is located near the Campo San Cassiano Bridge a short walk from the Rialto market. In summer, tables are set under a pergola of wisteria where patrons can enjoy a classic pizza with friends and family. Frequenting by Venetians on their lunch break, this pizzeria is also popular with tourists. Reasonably priced pizzas and traditional Venetian dishes especially the seafood appetizers is what keeps their kitchen busy till 11:00p every day except Thursdays. The drinks list includes bottled or draft beer and good local wines.
