MarkJoseph Steakhouse

"Steak All the Way"

MarkJoseph Steakhouse prides itself on serving excellent classic steaks and side dishes. From NY Strip and Filet Mignon to Lobster and traditional sides, this steakhouse maintains a purist approach. In addition to its classic dishes, the restaurant offers an impressive selection of wines to complement your meal. Another advantage of dining at MarkJoseph is its location within the South Street Seaport Historic District. With its warm and inviting ambiance, MarkJoseph Steakhouse provides a cozy setting for diners to indulge in their favorite meat dishes. Whether you're celebrating a special occasion or simply craving a perfectly cooked steak, this establishment promises a memorable and satisfying dining experience.

Harry's

"Classic Bar & Restaurant"

This restaurant's founder, Harry Poulkakos, arrived in America from Greece in search of his long-lost uncle. After finding his uncle, he worked various odd jobs, including a stint at the famous Delmonico's, until he established this steakhouse in the basement of the historic India House, located right in front of Hanover Square, in 1972. The menu is a classic steakhouse experience, featuring options such as Filet Mignon, Porterhouse, NY Strip, and a variety of seafood dishes. Additionally, Harry's hosts an excellent brunch on weekends, where patrons nursing hangovers can indulge in bottomless champagne cocktails alongside their eggs Benedict.

Minetta Tavern

"Parisian Steakhouse"

Established in 1937, this tavern/restaurant was named after a brook that once flowed through Manhattan from the Collect Pond further north. Step inside, and you get immediately transported to post-depression New York, albeit with a more updated menu. Black and white tiles with dark, wood-paneled walls draw in the crowd. Today, Minetta Tavern is run by Keith McNally, the man behind Pastis and Balthazar. The dinner menu is highlighted by the cuts of beef, such as the dry-aged côte de boeuf served for two and the bone-in New York strip. The menu is seasonal and ever-changing, although you can always have traditional favorites like steak frites and burgers.

STK Steakhouse

"Chic Steakhouse"

American cuisine seems to be thriving with the eateries limiting their focus to all American favorites advertised with contemporary twists. STK is one such establishment in the Meatpacking District, sporting a stellar assortment of premium meats in a rather glamorous avatar. While the steaks on offer receive the attention and care they deserve, the restaurant's stylish interiors and contemporary setting will change your perception about steakhouses in general. The lounge is a great place to chill out with a drink after your meal while the DJ spins a fun vibe.

Peter Luger Steakhouse

"Porterhouse Steak and More"

The irresistible aroma of dry-aged steak welcomes diners at the Peter Luger Steakhouse. Here diners can most assuredly expect to receive top-quality meats and service. While Rib Steak and Single Steak are crowd pullers, Creamed Spinach, Apple Strudel, and Pecan Pie are quite famous too. Adding to the heart-warming experience is the amiable and courteous staff, who has got you covered. If you find yourself craving a hearty steak in Brooklyn, do head to the Peter Luger Steakhouse for a relishing meal.

St. Anselm

"Delicious Steaks & More"

St. Anselm is an absolute must-visit spot for steak lovers in Brooklyn. Though The Butcher's Steak and Axe Handle Rib Eye are the highlights of their menu, other dishes like the Wine Braised Octopus, Bourbon Brined Pork Porterhouse, and Salmon Steak are equally liked by the patrons here. Delicious wines and beers enhance the dining experience with their superior quality and premium taste. Do not forget to order a delicious dessert before ending your meal at this place. Located on the Metropolitan Avenue, this restaurant is a great choice to enjoy a scrumptious meal with your loved ones.

Wolfgang's Steakhouse

"A Hearty Meal"

Hot steak platters, scuffed and cooked deliciously in conjunction with an elegant, classy and polished ambiance, is what makes Wolfgang's Steakhouse chic and appealing to its patrons. And if you are a die-hard steak lover, then this place is a must visit for you. Moreover, the restaurant is well endowed with a full bar, you can enjoy the steak while sipping on some beer on a relaxed Saturday evening. However, be warned the mouth-watering delights could be a little heavy on your pocket. Lamb chops, creamed spinach, German potatoes and Sirloin steak are the recommended dishes.

Keens Steakhouse

"Legendary Steaks"

Step into this classic chophouse and admire the odd display of 90,000 clay pipes that were once smoked by customers after dinner. Established in 1885, Keens is still popular for its legendary mutton chops and dry-aged prime steaks. Start with the Maryland Lump Crab Cakes, then try the Prime Porterhouse Steak. Indulge in the Vermont Bayley Hazen Blue with Port for dessert or one of the many single-malt scotches the bar serves. Banquet rooms like The Bull Moose Room and The Lincoln Room are also available for parties and special events.

Benjamin Steak House

"Buttery Steaks"

Popular with all types of patrons, Benjamin's is another notch on New York's steakhouse bedpost. The steak is USDA approved and you can enjoy your ethically sourced beef in muted, Gothic style surroundings, the ceiling soaring high above you. The steaks are all dry-aged and carefully selected by the chef - for non-steak lovers, there is a reasonable selection of salads and seafood to choose from. The sides are good and there is a selection of desserts. Be sure to make reservations.

Sparks Steak House

"Hearty Steaks & Delicious Wines"

Established in 1966, Sparks Steak House has developed a reputation for premium steaks, exclusive wines and an elite crowd. Dry-aged beef is served in hearty portions, as well as Extra-Thick Veal, and Lamb Chops. Seafood delicacies include Large Lobsters, Fresh Red Snapper, Wild Salmon, and more. These dishes are well-complemented by exquisite wines from a well-curated wine list. The elegant décor with a carpeted flooring, dark wood furnishing, and ambient lights makes for a perfect setting for guests to enjoy their meals here. Moreover, impeccable service by a kind staff makes this restaurant a great spot to have a delicious dinner in NYC.

Smith & Wollensky

"Top Notch Steak"

With decor apropos for a country club, the large wooden bar, oak floors and brass set the stage for serious carnivores at Smith & Wollensky. They have all of the usual cuts from our bovine friend, like filet Mignon, porterhouse, etc. and most portions are large, which will somewhat justify the bill. Most of the side dishes are your traditional standbys such as creamed spinach, baked potatoes and vegetables. For those who abstain from beef, there are fish and chicken dishes available, however most vegetarians need not apply, this is a steakhouse after all! Of the innumerable amount of steak restaurants in the city, this is one of the best.

Churrascaria Plataforma

"Carnivorous Delights"

Housed in a massive but simple space, the Brazilian Churrascaria Plataforma is a meat lover's paradise, with spectacular varieties carved up at your table by circling waiters. There is a huge salad bar, but most people come here primarily for the main courses. The real party begins when servers arrive with all sorts of skewered meat (beef, chicken, pork, lamb, goat), and patrons pick what they like. The desserts and sides are excellent as well.

Gallagher's Steakhouse

"Old New York Steakhouse"

Gallagher's Steakhouse, an iconic establishment in the heart of New York City, has been a haven for steak lovers since 1927. Located in the vibrant Theater District, Gallagher's boasts a timeless charm that transports diners to a bygone era of classic elegance. As you step through its doors, you're greeted by an inviting atmosphere adorned with vintage photographs, dark wood paneling, and plush leather banquettes. Renowned for its dry-aged steaks, Gallagher's prides itself on sourcing the finest USDA prime beef, expertly cooked to perfection. Each steak is meticulously aged in-house, resulting in a tender, flavorful masterpiece that satisfies even the most discerning palates. Accompanied by delectable side dishes and an extensive wine list, Gallagher's promises an unforgettable dining experience that celebrates the rich tradition of New York's culinary heritage.

Quality Meats

"It's All in the Name"

At Quality Meats, you can enjoy some of the finest meats available, hand-selected by Milton Abeles and Strassburger Meats, two of New York's oldest and most revered butchers. The decor draws inspiration from the butcher shop, with industrial meat hooks and scales turned light fixtures combining with wood paneling and white marble to create a sophisticated and elegant ambiance. The meals might be a bit pricey, but you get exactly what you pay for and exactly what the name of the restaurant claims: quality.
