La Colombe Torrefaction

"Carefully Crafted Coffee"

This Philadelphia-based coffee company has three locations in Manhattan: one in Tribeca, one in SoHo (at 270 Lafayette St), as well as one in NoHo. La Colombe values simplicity; so much so that they don't even have a menu. The top priority here is coffee, and nothing else. There's no Wi-Fi, no merchandise, and no lunch foods. Luckily, the coffee delivers on all fronts, and is a favorite among New Yorkers for its rich flavor and low price.

Ferrara Bakery & Café

"Original Espresso"

Ferrara claims to be America's first espresso bar, and whether it is or it is not, patrons can agree that it has been around for a long time. And despite whether they are first, second or third, the quality and quantity of their desserts and espresso merit acclaim. Since 1892, this pastry shop has been serving patrons delicious dolci and even amidst the hustle and bustle of modernity outside, this place still transports you to another era while inside.

Caffé Vita

"Fair Beans"

This well-known coffeehouse chain from Seattle and the Pacific Northwest has invaded the LES with its much vaunted farm direct and fair trade products. Here you will find a massive range of coffee and espresso, from blends made with Theo chocolate (also from Seattle) to beans straight from farms in Brazil, Africa and other exotic locales such as East Timor. The owners and personnel are also very friendly and knowledgeable, providing tips on simple brewing techniques or giving detailed information on sustainability and fair markets, if you happen to be interested. So sit back, have a cup and find out how far that flavorful bean has traveled.

Abraço

"Simple, Friendly, Home-Like Coffee"

Abraço is an espresso bar in the East Village that is known equally for its perky coffee as well as its savory snacks. It is a small, simple coffeehouse owned by a family. The atmosphere is cheerful and instantly uplifts the mood. The coffee is also addictive. The snacks are available past noon and rotate daily, so there is always something different on offer. The olive oil cake that is home-baked from organic flour is especially famous among the locals. Also worth a mention are the honey saffron cake and the frittatas. There is no WiFi here, which is a good thing, as Abraço is about living simply, minus the frivolities of life!

Cha An BONBON

"East Village's Favorite Tearoom"

Expert Chef Tomoko Kato brings the aromas and natural flavors of East Asia to New York in the form of Cha-an, an elegant Japanese tea room in the East Village. They say good tea tastes better when enjoyed in good company, and Cha-an is a perfect place to spend an afternoon with friends over the choicest of teas and Japanese snacks. The decor has been kept very minimal and traditional, with bamboos and low lights to create an atmosphere of tranquility. Kato has thoughtfully created a good selection of desserts and savories that pair perfectly with the teas like Adam & Eve.

Tea & Sympathy

"Tea & Sympathy"

Tea & Sympathy is a cozy little spot that features one of the most authentic British experiences in the city, or practically anywhere else for that matter. The small shop serves up buttery scones, treacle pudding and steak and kidney pie. Portions are generous, the service comforting and atmosphere laid-back. The walls are covered with humorous newspaper clippings from Britain. Adjacent is the restaurant's take-out store, where expatriates and Anglophiles can stock up on their favorite English items.

Cafe Grumpy

"Fine Quality Java"

Cafe Grumpy is passionately dedicated to the art of coffee brewing. With an onsite brewing machine called the Clover, it lovingly converts coffee beans to the perfect cup of your favorite caffeinated beverage. Apart from brewing singles, they also create infusions with berries and fruits for added flavors. The resultant coffee that is produced is way better than the average street fare and more strong and flavorful too. There is plentiful seating provided to sit back and savor the taste. The WiFi allows one to catch up on work while sipping the drink. There is tea too, for those who want a change. Light snacks are also served here.

Russian Tea Room

"A Gilded Landmark"

Located right next door to the famed Carnegie Hall, the Russian Tea Room has a rich and long-standing history with New York high society. Originally opened by members of the Russian Imperial Ballet in 1926, this elegant, red and gold architectural masterpiece has been host to countless celebrities, performers and politicians. The restaurant's ownership has since changed hands since its closure in 2002, after the death of former owner Warner LeRoy; it re-opened and returned with the same opulent and stately atmosphere.

Alice's Tea Cup Chapter II

"Tea-Time Treats"

This charming tea room is based on Alice in Wonderland, and is a hit with kids who love coming here for after school treats. Kids get to wear butterfly wings while having their special tea, which features gigantic scones served with preserves and cream. Grown ups enjoy the extensive tea menu with its many teas sourced from all over the world, as well and the newly introduced "Mar-tea-nis." Tea at Alice's Tea Cup: Chapter II also influences the lunch menu, which features an excellent Lapsang Souchong smoked chicken sandwich. The menu features various prix-fixe options and a brunch menu as well.
