The Magician

"Endless Happy Hours"

The Magician takes the cake for being one of the more laid-back dive bars on the Lower East Side. Taking a cue from what one would presume to be a "bag of tricks," this bar is an eclectic mix of birthdays, bachelorette parties, bar flies, and fun-loving weekenders. The late-night place boasts classic wooden interiors and an elaborate bar that promises a night of fun, good drinks, great conversations, and endless revelry. The bar is cash only, so make sure to come prepared.

La Linea

"Happy Hours Indeed!"

La Linea in East Village is a laidback lounge perfect for catching up with friends and unwinding after a long day. The bar features DJs who play throughout most of the night and offers incredible happy hour deals. On select nights, La Linea plays R&B and Hip Hop, encouraging guests to hit the dance floor and party. Its stylish and cozy ambiance creates a welcoming atmosphere for patrons. Additionally, the lounge offers a diverse selection of craft cocktails and delicious bites, making it an ideal spot for both relaxation and indulging in delicious treats.

The Boiler Room

"East Village Gay Bar"

This spacious and mellow gay bar also attracts a fair share of straight people. Some say it is past its prime, but others claim it has never been better. Like the neighborhood it is housed in, Boiler Room is an attitude-free alternative to Chelsea's fussiness. It has a great jukebox, a pool table and a pinball machine, and the price of alcohol is low by New York City standards. Although this place does not accept credit cards, an ATM is housed within the bar for your convenience.

Blind Tiger Ale House

"On the Prowl!"

Blind Tiger has been around for many decades, and a tight-knit circle of loyal patrons still frequent this place, which has humbly remained a favorite drinking destination for locals and newbies. The reason Blind Tiger continues to stay on top is because of their carefully crafted beer selection coupled with some of the best pub grub you'll find in New York. With an idiosyncratic choice of more than 20 draft beers, plus crazy bottled varieties, beer snobs will be left spoiled for choice. The food menu is nothing fancy, but there's something for everyone - sliders, salads, sandwiches and tacos. The happy hour lets you have a good time without having to break the bank.

Barrow Street Ale House

"Old Village Haunt"

Located in an old stable and carriage house built in 1897, the Barrow Street Alehouse is a no-frills bar and pub that serves as a good spot to catch a game. Inside, patrons can play typical games like darts and pool while they guzzle one of the many beers out of the fifteen bar taps. Two daily happy hours, including one starting at midnight makes it a great deal if you are up late, while food served until 3a makes it the ultimate after party spot.

Maison Premiere

"Absinthe and Oysters"

A timeless standout in New York's ever-changing nightlife scene, Maison Premiere enjoys a distinguished patronage for its New Orleans French Quarter-inspired elegance. Located in Williamsburg, this cocktail den and oyster house is one of the premiere places in New York for absinthe. Patrons can sit around the ornate marble counter with the centerpiece absinthe fountain or find a spot in the beautiful canopied garden area; the maitre d' will happily help you get settled in. And if you're averse to trying the exquisite absinthe, then they also have a superior menu of selected beer, wine and classic cocktails that go very well with the oysters.

Brooklyn Ice House

"Scrumptious Bites and Tasteful Drinks"

Perfect for casual drinking, Brooklyn Ice House is one of the best hangouts in Red Hook. Famous among locals, it serves decent brews, along with some delicious pulled pork. Their patio features wooden tables, iron chairs, and a small garden. Cheap food and cheaper drinks are what you will find here. The Brooklyn Ice House is for those who love to drink while listening to music and chatting with friends. Drop by to sip on some tasteful concoctions and unwind in the divey atmosphere of this place.

Brook Vin

"Relaxed Wine Bar"

A cozy neighborhood wine bar, Brook Vin serves classic wine that can be savored at leisure. One can sit comfortably in the garden and savor the beverages with friends, or have a quiet meal alone. It has a fine list of red and white wine including specimens like the peachy Shooting Star Aligoté and the Château de Caladroy "Les Schistes." While one can buy by the glass or bottle, the concept of buying a half bottle is also entertained at this venue. Thus, one has more freedom to experiment and explore the various wines on display, without too much trouble of finishing it. The staff is knowledgeable and helpful, often suggesting suitable wines. Food is also served here.

Landmark Tavern

"Classic Historic Irish Pub"

Established in 1878, the Landmark Tavern is a historic location in New York City. Since its existence, it has been operating at the Hudson waterside, serving generations of people with its exhausting list of whiskey, wine and scrumptious food. The decor is antique and old world with traditional mahogany carved panels, a wooden bar and ornamental mirrors. The wines are sourced from France, Italy, New Zealand, Australia and Chile. The Irish whiskey consists of names like Jameson, Glenfiddich, Glenmorangie and Laphroaig. There are live Irish bands entertaining the guests including the likes of Don Meade. Make sure to visit this landmark pub once, if only to catch a sighting of the resident Confederate veteran.

The Stag's Head

"Off with His Head"

The Stag's Head Pub, a basement Midtown establishment, has a rustic, British feel. This gastropub produces tasty high-end pub grub, like Shepherd's Pie and Yankee pot roast, that it likes to pair with specialty brews for a refined taste. There's a decent selection of beer. Other drink choices should suffice for most needs. Happy hour runs daily throughout the week, and weekend brunch is an option too.

The Stumble Inn

"Over a Glass of Chilled Beer"

Upper East Side fraternity boys and sorority gals can relive their rollicking spring break trip to the Caribbean at this lively bar and restaurant. It is brightly painted and adorned with fake palm trees and parrots; the drinks of choice are colorful, sweet, and have little umbrellas. The island style cuisine-including shrimp and lobster dishes, is far better than most bar food at The Stumble Inn. There is even occasional live music.
