The Original Pantry Cafe

"Oldest Gem"

This iconic and one of the oldest restaurants, established in 1924 in Los Angeles, has made a mark among locals and tourists alike. Situated in the heart of downtown Los Angeles, The Original Pantry Cafe has been serving up classic American comfort food for nearly a century. This is the kind of place your grandparents loved—and probably still visit. Owned by ex-Mayor Richard Riordan, The Original Pantry Café is open 24 hours a day and has not closed since 1924. Breakfast, lunch, or dinner will more than fill your tank for a very reasonable charge. For breakfast, all the classic dishes are available, while lunch and dinner provide burgers, sandwiches, and some juicy steaks. The eclectic crowd varies from working-class regulars to hipsters and everyone in between. So, if you find yourself in Los Angeles and want to experience a true taste of the city's past, The Original Pantry Cafe is a must-visit destination. It offers not only delicious food but also a sense of nostalgia and connection to a bygone era.

Fred 62

"L.A.'s Best Diner Food"

When you think of dining in Los Angeles, an image of a posh, dim and expensive restaurant might come to mind. However, like any major city, LA has a number of different sides to it and that extends to dining options. If you're looking for a little comfort food in a casual setting, check out Fred 62 in the Los Feliz area of Los Angeles. The kitschy diner offers a large variety of options for breakfast, lunch and dinner and attracts hipster patrons. Most of the breakfast items are must-tries, especially the Fred McMurray and the Dime Bag; don't be put off by the interesting names. There is also a good variety of options for kids as well as a beer and wine menu.

"Authentic Thai In The Middle Of LA"

Take your taste buds on a Thai trip, at this humble restaurant, located at Hollywood Boulevard. Situated in the Los Feliz neighborhood, it remains to be a favorite among the locals of this area. Simple and unpretentious decor adorn the interiors, while giving it a typical diner-style ambiance. However, it is not the service, ambiance of hospitality, that customers keep coming back for. It is the lip-smacking food and authentic flavors that keeps pulling them, time and again. Among their wide menu, the dishes like glassy noodle soup, spicy beef salad, BBQ pork over rice and seaweed soup are the crowd-pleasers. Don't forget to carry your cash, as they don't accept cards.

Torung

"Late Night Thai in Hollywood"

A trusty place of many years for lunch, dinner and late-night cheap eats; Torung has long won a local seal of approval. Despite its low prices, Torung is not a greasy-spoon fast food joint serving heaps of lackluster goop. The food here is tasty, zesty and authentic, and dished out in generous portions. Pad sew ewe, crab fried rice, chicken satay and papaya salad are some of the favorites. The atmosphere and the service are friendly and welcoming. Cash only.

Canter's

"Granddaddy of Delis"

Since 1928, this L.A. standby has been offering 24-hour casual dining in the heart of the Fairfax district. You'll find the food here authentic and the people-watching amazing. Everyone from The Wallflowers to K.D. Lang and Madonna has stopped in to eat here. Favorites include the in-house pickled corned beef pastrami, the hot corned beef, the tender beef brisket and the many offerings from the in-house bakery. Next door is the Kibitz Room, where there's live music most nights. A full bar and decent wines work well with the food.

Carney's

"Dogs & Burgers"

Since 1975, Carney's has satisfied LA's chili fries and burger cravings, delivering a pitch-perfect experience in this genuine, vintage yellow Amtrak train car from the 1920s, done up as a classic diner on the inside. And that is not all! They have a worthy lineup of hot dogs and polish sausages, much touted as some of the best in town, all at the lowest imaginable prices, especially given the joint's docking grounds - the east tip of the Sunset Strip. A private lot behind the car takes away the headache of parking at the Strip while the amiable, smiley service assures you that you have come to the right place. And if you already think the place is cheap and swell, try it during happy hour!
