Akbar

"Unpretentious, Classy Gay Joint"

This somewhat elegant gay haunt on the corner of Sunset and Fountain Avenues is a great place for a drink any day of the week. The ambience is upbeat, with sounds from the jukebox constantly raising the energy level of the place. The crowd gets busy after 10p or during events, but plenty of seats are usually still to be had all night long. Best of all, the help remains attitude-free. Although primarily a gay bar, all are welcomed here with equal enthusiasm. Don't forget to check out the gorgeous mirrored bar.

Fubar

"LGBT Bar"

Themed nights and strong cocktails make this entertainment venue and nightclub a favorite for Los Angeles revelers. Fubar is an LGBT establishment in the West Hollywood neighborhood. Touted as, "not your fathers gay bar", Fubar as lively as they come. Gorgeous bartenders mix up the perfect drinks, while resident DJ's get the tunes spinning and the people out on the dance floor.

Rage

"Center of Gay World"

This is perhaps the quintessential gay bar in Los Angeles. Its large windows look right out into West Hollywood and, looking in or out, chances are you will appreciate the view. This hot disco has been packing them in seven nights a week for over a decade. The weekends are especially crowded. This means large, crowded dance floors and plenty of loud music. You can always count on the friendly bar that assures that the party never stops. If you are hungry for more than a good party, the place also serves lunch and dinner.
