Best Western City Hotel

"Right in the heart of Genoa"

Without doubt, Genova is one of Italy's most interesting cities thanks to its history and culture. Large numbers of tourists go there and the city has an active commercial centre. The City hotel is in the most central part of the city. It is in the perfect place to go for a wander and find all the most important corners of the city. For example there is Via Aurea with its palazzos and piazza De Ferrari with the Carlo Felice theatre and the Duchy palace, and the oldest city centre in Europe. The hotel has three suites available. These have Hydromassage, sitting rooms and terraces.

Parco dell'Acquasola

"A park With A Terrifying Secret"

This public park, with views ranging over the Bisagno valley, covers the area where the sixteenth century fortifications, linked with Saint Catherine, once stood. It lies over the pits where the victims of the plague which raged through the city in 1656-7 are buried. The remains of ten or perhaps fifteen thousand victims are still visible today during underground explorations. A group of investigators ventured within the walls in 1989 and found themselves, in what might have been a scene from a horror film, face to face with a mountain of perfectly conserved skeletons. The park was established in 1821 by C. Barabino, as an area for strolling and sporting competitions. The park is adorned with tree-lined walkways and a central lake where swans and ducks are to be found. As well as a children's play park, there are areas for skating and cycling, football pitches, table tennis tables, bowling greens and even an athletics track.

La Befana Giocattoli

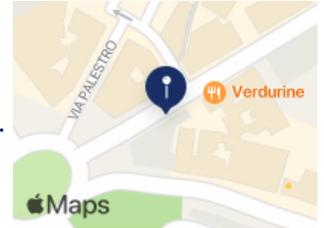

"Attention Kids!"

La Befana Giocattoli has been selling amazing, interactive toys since 1926. The store has got some really nice games, modelling sets, railway modelling games, science games, and so much more. The store is great for all ages to pick something, so even if you feel you're too old for it, you're going to end up feeling otherwise once inside. Take your little ones for sure-they're going to have a great time with the merchandise.

Museo Civico Di Storia Naturale

"Natural History Museum"

This museum was founded in 1867 by Giacomo Doria, it is housed in a building built specifically for it. It contains important zoological, paleontological, botanical, an mineralogical collection from all over the world - these collections are continually growing. It is estimated that there are more than 3.5 million exhibits today. The museum houses a Library and Education Center with a multimedia laboratory. It often hosts temporary exhibitions, conventions, and conferences. The most interesting features for the many school children who visit every year are without doubt the large, ancient Italian, elephant skeleton, and the African Savana room which is enlivened with light and sound effects. School children are free, as are under 18's, and over 60's.

Città dei Bambini

"Child Size City"

Città dei Bambini is the only organization in Italy which provides games and teaching activities and which is open to visitors from 3-14 years old. The Children's city is divided into various sections. It was inspired by the Cité des Sciences at Villette in Paris. There is an area which is dedicated to pre-school children. It has two sections: building a house and discovery. Here, children can let their imagination run wild and all work together in the building yard or experiment with physical phenomenon, using different sensory devices.(listening to the wind, recognizing smells and flavors) There is an unconventional way of introducing children to computers by allowing them to interact creatively with the machine. For the bigger children, there three other sections: techniques of communication, with a production studio for the TV news, the living world which shows the ways of life of different animals, You and Others which looks at the reality of those around us. The store is open on Mondays in the months of April, May and August and public holidays, please check the website for more information.

Galata Museo del Mare

"A Detailed Maritime Account"

Genoa was Christopher Columbus' hometown, and it maintained a reputation as a major port for those traveling across the seas and to the New World. Housed in one of the oldest buildings that still survives from the Genoa Republic, the Galata Museo del Mare focuses primarily on the theme of the sea voyage and examines the methods of transportation and life of sailors aboard historic vessels. Right next to Genoa's aquarium and overlooking the sea, Galata is spread out on four levels and in more than twenty rooms.

Centro Gioco Educativo

"Early learning games"

The Early Learning centre is specialised in providing games for young children. There is a vast selection of goods which are suitable for children of age two upwards. Most of the games are still made from wood and are designed to stimulate the child's natural capacity to learn. There are games requiring logic, construction as well as hundreds of soft toys in every shape and size (some of which are absolutely enormous). The toy shop is quite traditional; it doesn't sell videogames but there are some lovely rocking horses.
