Shakespeare Tavern Playhouse

"Food for the Mind and Body"

This Midtown dinner theater provides good food and great Shakespearean entertainment. The Atlanta Shakespeare Company, which manages The New American Shakespeare Tavern, was the first American company to perform at London's Globe Theatre. A traditional English pub meal is offered during the hour before the show. A full bar features Harp, Bass, and Guinness, as well as a few wines. Seating is done on a first-come, first-served basis, so arrive early. Call for performance schedule.

Starlight Drive-In

"Atlanta's Only-Surviving Drive-In Theater"

Oddly sandwiched between a cemetery and a landfill, the Starlight Drive-In Theatre is an eccentric, hidden gem of Atlanta. Braving the wave of urbanization, this 1949 drive-in theater stands as a proud and sole vestige of the glory of Atlanta's movie-watching history. Moviegoers continue to reward the resilience of the theater by flocking to its wide expanse every day to catch a show of the latest movie. Home to multiple screens, the theater welcomes visitors all year-round. While the weekdays bring in eager cinephiles, the weekends lure culture enthusiasts with a massive flea market. When visiting Atlanta, you must head to this relic to experience old-school entertainment in a modern garb.
