Biga on the Banks

"Creative Fine Dining"

With a seasonal menu of creative dishes by Chef Bruce Auden, Biga on the Banks is one of San Antonio's favorite fine dining restaurants. The dining room is elegant and warm, featuring yellow and red tones and wooden sculptures throughout. Entrees are mainly American meat and seafood dishes, including the seared mahi-mahi and beef rib eye. The atmosphere is perfect for a romantic dinner. They also cater, so you can have their delicious food at your special event.

Boudro's

"A Texas Bistro on the River Walk"

Steaks, seafood and Southwestern specialties from deep in the "haute" of Texas. Located on San Antonio's famous River Walk, Boudro's is often the restaurant for spotting visiting celebrities. Don't miss the fresh Guacamole (made table side), the Prickly Pear Margaritas or the blackened Prime Rib. And be sure to dine with friends so you can order one of every dessert to share. Boudro's is a favorite among locals and tourists alike and books quickly. Dining is available indoors, riverside and on river barges with advance reservations. Handicapped access is available through a street-level elevator.

Fig Tree Restaurant

"Opulent Dining on the River Walk"

If you are looking for an upscale dining experience with classic cuisine and a decor to match, look no further. Nothing is taken for chance at this restaurant, which is located on the River Walk in a charming, restored old home in La Villita. The china, silver, table settings and general decor of Fig Tree Restaurant make it an experience in fine dining. The menu consists of entrees such as rack of lamb, Chateaubriand and beef Wellington. The Fig Tree also spares no expense on a very well-rounded wine list.

Little Rhein Steak House

"Romantic Steakhouse"

Dining just does not get more Texan than a cold beer and a good steak and that is what you get at the Little Rhein. This famous River Walk restaurant is housed in the oldest two-story structure in San Antonio, which was built in 1847. Antique memorabilia decorates the walls and takes you back to an age when Texans sat down to dinner with their six guns. The menu contains a variety of steaks, ranging from Filet Mignon to T-bones to Rib Eyes. The savory flavors can be complemented with a few glasses of wine. Don't hesitate to ask the wait staff for wine flight recommendations. They are knowledgeable and will gladly guide you. Overlooking the scenic neighborhood and offering some great river views, the restaurant is also a great place to bring along a date.
