Oxford Art Factory

"House of Innovation"

If you think that categorizing music into various genres limits the ability of the artists to delve into new dimensions of innovation and creativity, then you need to head straight for The Oxford Art Factory. This bar and entertainment venue does not look down upon emerging talent, no matter how radical and new they may seem. The idea of promoting new sounds and beats, while yet upholding the old ones, is what this music lovers' haven is all about. The Oxford Art Factory also has an arts gallery space where it showcases and promotes works by the Australian arts community. There's also a well-equipped bar at this venue where you can either enjoy a quiet drink by yourself, or chat about your new found love for all things arty with some of the folk around.

Club 77

"Clubbin' in Sydney"

Although the chances of meeting a celebrity at Club 77 are slim, this gritty nightclub does offer you some excellent drinks, a vibrant atmosphere, and some really cool live performances and DJ music to groove to. The place is always packed with crowds of people that look like they were born to party, and with those who look like they do nothing else. This is the ideal venue to meet new people, chill out with your mates, or simply dance the night away. The electric performances by indie, pop, rock and funk artists at Club 77 also contribute to why this club is popular with both locals as well as tourists.

Argyle

"Five Bar Lounge"

Located in Argyle Stores, Argyle is a five-bar lounge in the oldest part of the city. The 18th-century architecture lends a certain charm to this place that is as big as a boutique hotel. With space not being a constraint, the seating is spacious and comfortable. Muted lights, wooden rafters, huge pillars and glass urns make up the interiors. You are spoiled for choice between the Lava Bar, The Perch, The Lounge or Courtyard. The staff is extremely friendly and this place is a must-visit for its ambiance, food, and margaritas.
