Roseland Theater

"Party For All Ages"

Roseland Theater is extremely popular with young revelers, especially the under-21 crowd. The bar and balcony are now upstairs, and the downstairs stage turns into an all-age dancing frenzy most nights. Acts range from reggae to the latest popular bands, so it is a great place to catch the up-and-coming as well as legendary performers. Beer, wine and soft drinks are all available. There is also a grill restaurant open downstairs.

Crystal Ballroom

"Dance Into the Past"

Great entertainers such as Marvin Gaye, James Brown and the Grateful Dead have performed in this historic ballroom that is now owned by the McMenamín Brothers. Three on-site bars—including a popular nightclub, Ringlers - will satiate your hunger and thirst. It is worth a visit just to behold the local landmark's ornate chandeliers, picturesque windows and a 7500-square-foot (696.7728 square meters) dance floor that floats on ball-bearings.

Arlene Schnitzer Concert Hall

"Tesoro cultural de portland"

El "Schnitz", como lo conocen los ciudadanos, es un tesoro de Portland construido en el año 1927. Forma parte de los 5 Centros de Artes de Portland y allí se encuentra la Sinfonía de Oregón. Fue reparado en la década de 1980 y actualmente ofrece un gran número de instalaciones. La sala de conciertos tiene espacio para 2.776 personas y cuenta con un balcón superior y uno inferior para una vista especial. Fuera del vestíbulo podemos encontrar una tienda de regalos que ofrece una selección variada de productos de la Sinfonía de Oregón, entre ellos grabaciones. Ya no hacen juguetes como este. Los tres edificios que conforman el museo ofrecen una gran cantidad de juguetes de colección, muchos de ellos muñecas y piezas de hierro fundido. ¡Es un poco diferente a lo que los chicos de ahora les gustan y probablemente hará que te sientas nostálgico por una época pasada! Algunos de los juguetes tienen hasta 150 años de antigüedad y seguramente te sorprenderá su sencillez.

Revolution Hall

"Stunning Music Venue"

A sprawling music venue, Revolution Hall is housed inside the former George Washington High School in the neighborhood of Southeast Portland. This performing arts center was originally built as the school's auditorium, before the school facility went defunct and the hall was renovated to suit its current needs. Revolution Hall is a 830-seat venue and also houses a full service bar that offers food and drinks.

Lincoln Performance Hall

"Campus Performing Venue"

Built in 1911, formerly Lincoln High School, this 475 seat venue, is home to the Portland State University's music and theater departments and the Portland State Opera Theater. The venue is complete with an auditorium, a studio theater and a practice room. The architecture reflects the classical style with high regal columns and balconies. In 1975, the auditorium and stage were renovated and ever since it has become a central location for the university's performing arts. Piano recitals, opera and theater performances are regular events at this venue.

Wonder Ballroom

"Elegant Ballroom in Historic Building"

The Wonder Ballroom is housed in a historic building that dates back to the year 1914, but restoration work has secured its popularity as an entertainment venue. Besides hosting a wide range of live musical and theatrical performances, it can also be rented for corporate gatherings and private occasions. Currently, it has the whopping capacity to hold 778 people. Besides the professional stage and technical set-up, it has a full bar and offers catering services.

Aladdin Theater

"Live Music & Microbrews"

Previously known as the Geller Theater, Aladdin Theater was reborn as an exciting venue for a variety of top-name entertainers. Though most of the acts are musicians in pop, new country, ethnic, blues and folk music, you will also find the occasional comedy act. This fun and intimate venue rocks plenty, but it does not forget to offer roomy, theater-style seating. Order pizza when your hunger calls. It is perfect with the wine and microbrews served alongside the entertainment.
