Mamoun's Falafel

"Marvelous Mamoun"

Since 1971, Mamoun's has been the spot to go when you need true falafel and shwarma made with tender loving care. Upon entering, Mamoun's staff is sure to remind you that they are one of the oldest Middle Eastern restaurants in the city and many locals claim the falafel here to be the best. Mamoun's has few other locations in the Tri-State area, rest assured however that each one maintains the highest quality ingredients and a strict adherence to tradition.

2 Bros Pizza

"One Dollar Pizza!"

2 Bros Pizza is a popular local pizza joint in Saint Mark's Place. They do have various other outlets across the city. The restaurant is famous for their one dollar pizza slice and you can avail pizzas either in slices or whole pies at affordable prices. They also cater to a large group of people anywhere in Manhattan. Their pizzas are not only cheap but delicious as well. You can either walk in, call or take away the pizzas.

Crif Dogs

"Uno de los Principales de Nueva York"

El nombre de este restaurante proviene del momento en el que el fundador Brian Shebairo trató de decir el nombre de su amigo y co-fundador Chris, mientras comía un perrito caliente. Una visita obligada para los amantes de las salchichas, Crif Dogs ha subido la apuesta con sus salchichas ahumadas hechas a mano. También sirven unas hamburguesas increíbles y batidos, pero la mayoría vienen por los perritos calientes. Hay que probar el Spicy Redneck, una obra maestra envuelta en tocino cubierto con ensalada de col y jalapeños. Hay dos sucursales, la original en East Village y un local nuevo en Williamsburg, Brooklyn.

Taim Falafel & Smoothie Bar

"A Lot of Falafel"

This tiny Israeli restaurant serves some of the best falafel to be found in the city. Limited seating in the restaurant can be an issue, so when the weather is nice, take your food outside to the benches out front. The falafel platter is a favorite, and the sauces are sure to please. Wash it all down with some refreshing iced tea, fresh lemonade or a smoothie.

Sao Mai

"Delish Vietnamese Fare"

Sao Mai is not a fancy looking restaurant but if you are looking for a good Vietnamese diner, then this is indeed one of the best options in town. Savor their Goi Cuon, grilled lemongrass chicken, pho, bun and Banh Cuon. If you want to eat in the comfort of your home, you can ask them to deliver as well.

Corner Bistro

"Burgers, Beer & Charm"

Nestled in the heart of the West Village, this casual American bar and restaurant is open till late (usually until 4a) and serves cheap, casual fare. The greasy but tasty burgers and fries are what makes this place popular. A friendly spot, Corner Bistro caters to a diverse crowd of downtown denizens as well as the college types who party on Bleecker Street. This is a cash only joint, but at these prices, you should have no problem paying the bill.

Tacos El Bronco

"Flavors of Mexico"

New York is notorious for its lack of authentic Mexican food, but there are still a few bright lights to be seen through the darkness, and Tacos El Bronco is one of them. Those willing to make the trip to Sunset Park will be rewarded with delicious tacos, tortas, burritos and platos heaped with juicy meats, beans, rice, tortillas and more. There is also a kids menu and a decent selection of snacks, appetizers, salads, hamburgers and seafood. Tacos El Bronco also has a few food trucks which can be found around the area, always with a small crowd waiting to gobble up these delicious foods.

Gray's Papaya

"Perros Calientes Clásicos"

Pregúntele a cualquier neoyorquino dónde conseguir el mejor perro caliente y la respuesta muy probablemente sea Gray's Papaya. Este local legendario de perros calientes sirve unos perros calientes largos que los dejarán más que satisfechos, cargados de ingredientes deliciosos, como cebollas caramelizadas, sauerkraut y chile picante. Si se preguntan por qué el nombre incluye la palabra "papaya", se debe a que también encontrarán una amplia selección de jugos frescos, incluido el de papaya. Si están buscando la forma de llenarse el estómago rápido en Upper West Side sin quedar con los bolsillos vacíos, entonces vayan a Gray's Papaya.

The King of Falafel and Shawarma

"The Undisputed King"

The King of Falafel and Shawarma is not self-proclaimed royalty; the food stand has been the recipient of awards like the Vendy and People's Choice. The King caters to both vegans and meat lovers. The falafel, made with Freddy's mother's secret spices, is a vegan treat. If you want to grab a bite on the run, the chicken wrap and shish kebabs are for you; if a complete meal is what you want then you should definitely go for the chicken platter. This food stand really is the undisputed king of falafel and shawarma.
