Sugarfish

"Japanese Delights"

A chain of restaurants started by Kazunori Nozawa, Sugarfish is renowned for serving authentic Japanese cuisine. The Los Angeles outlet is located in the city's bustling downtown neighborhood. Sushi being the highlight of this place, you can take your pick from a delightful variety made from tuna, halibut, yellowtail, salmon, scallops, unagi (eel), albacore, snapper and more. A must-try is the house special, Nozawa-style Shrimp. This restaurant also offers omakase-style dining, where you have to rely on your chef to serve you the best multi-course dishes. Reservations are not accepted at Sugarfish Downtown LA; make sure to reach there well in advance to procure a seat.

Caña Rum Bar

"A Downtown Bar with Swagger"

This exclusive bar requires a membership, but before you jump ship, know that it's USD20 a year to gain access, which is the equivalent of a club cover charge for just one night in Los Angeles! With dimly lit interiors and a gorgeous bar adorned with fruits, spirits, spices, and herbs, this establishment has a decor of the ingredients that make potent rum-infused cocktails. Caña boasts over 100 rums, and each variety has a unique character as these are small-batch liqueurs. In addition to the excellent rum collection, the gorgeous outdoor seating is Caña's other unique proposition. The warmth of a fireplace and cane seating spaces here allows patrons to become oblivious to the outside world.

Thirsty Crow

"Un Confiable Bar de Barrio"

Finalmente crearon un bar-lounge sin pretensiones en Silver Lake con la elegancia nostálgica suficiente para diferenciarlo de los establecimientos tradicionales pero sin convertirlo en un espacio exclusivo, elitista ni exagerado. El ambiente es muy parecido a los bares clandestinos de antaño y la decoración está compuesta por detalles en caoba, espejos ahumados, reservados de cuero muy cómodos y una rocola. La clientela está compuesta en su mayoría por hipsters, artistas y músicos de todas las edades, y el recinto suele llenarse toda la semana. La calidad y la variedad de tragos clásicos es el gran orgullo de Thirsty Crow, cuyos bartenders preparan de forma experta los mejores Mint Juleps, Old Fashioned, Manhattans y Gimlets. Los precios son idealmente bajos, lo que alienta a la clientela a pedir más de uno.
