The Prime Rib

"Baltimore's Benchmark Steakhouse"

For more than 30 years, this downtown restaurant has been Baltimore's benchmark for upscale steakhouses. The signature dish shows why. The Prime Rib Steak is a tender 24-ounce behemoth, a full three inches thick. The rest of the offerings, including several fine seafood dishes, are just as good, if not as weighty. It's hard to believe, but the decor - black walls, gold curtains and leopard-print carpet - is somehow just right. Side dishes are a la carte, and the wine list is great.

The Capital Grille

"A Cut Above The Rest"

Capital Grille is no messy and noisy steakhouse. The Capital Grille is a forerunner in Baltimore's fine dining. Situated at the scenic Inner Harbor, it is known for its relaxed and stylish atmosphere. Enjoy intimate conversations as the delicious smell of their famous steaks waft by. You have to try their specialty, the Dry Aged Beef Steak. Those looking for a lighter meal can opt for the fresh seafood selections. End a lip smacking meal with sublime desserts like the White Chocolate Mousse. If you are looking for a slightly clubby ambiance then head for the lounge. The Capital Grille also has separate rooms for private dining complete with customized menus. Don't forget to compliment your meal with a glass from the award winning wine selection.

Ruth's Chris Steak House

"Extraordinary In Every Way"

Dining here is a pleasure, for the ambience and service complement the top notch flavors well. Ruth's Chris has tried to venture away from its usual steak menu, to be rewarded with satisfied, returning patrons. Step in and treat your taste buds to the eclectic creations on the menu: the Barbecued Shrimp is a good way to start, followed by a Steak House Salad. You can hop directly to the entrée section, where filets, T-bones, tuna, lobster and salmon dishes vie with each other, both in terms of taste and popularity. Each menu listing is accompanied by a brief, yet tantalizing description of its contents, which adds to the anticipation. Polish off your meal with a slice of Bread Pudding, Cheesecake or Crème Brulee.
