SF Camerawork

"Art at its Best"

SF Camerawork has been pleasantly sharing its artistic treasure for the past 34 years. It is a non-profit organization that is devoted to the works of photographers. This is, perhaps, one of the few artists' organizations in the country that promotes photography at its imaginative best. SF Camerawork not only supports established photographers, but also reassures the unrecognized talents. The gallery holds exhibitions and public dialogs to edify about various modern techniques involved in image making.

Haines Gallery

"Monet Wakes Up"

The Haines Gallery is a visual feast. Open for over a decade, this gallery elevates your perception of reality without taking you to another planet of iconography. Instead, pass the time slowly in front of an oil painting, say by Tome Leaver. His atmospheric tree paintings with swampy greens and quiet gold skies feel like Monet after a nap. The color harmony is subtle, while the gesture of nature looms high. In addition to paintings, find photography and new media works.

Le musée d'art moderne de San Francisco abrite une collection permanente de plus de 15 000 œuvres, dont 4 700 peintures, sculptures, œuvres sur papier, ainsi que 9 000 photographies. Initialement ouvert en 1995, il a exposé les œuvres de Henri Matisse, Richard Diebenkorn, Drothea Lange, Paul Klee, Cindy Sherman, Matthew Barney et de nombreux artistes contemporains. Imaginé par l'architecte suisse Mario Botta, l'espace en lui-même est une merveille. Suite à une rénovation importante achevée en 2016, le SFMOMA occupe actuellement sept étages et propose de nouvelles installations exaltantes telles qu'un mur vivant, un jardin de sculptures et des vues imprenables sur les Yerba Buena Gardens.
