Serres Royales de Laeken

"Serres royales de la monarchie belge"

Conçus pour le Roi Léopold en 1873, ces dômes de vitres et d'acier se situent à la lisière de du Palais Royal de Laeken. Les serres étaient d'une construction innovante de l'époque et celles-ci sont particulièrement extraordinaires en raison de leur style Art Nouveau. Ces serres abritent d'une variété énorme de fleurs et de plantes. Même si l'extérieur attractif peut être visité toute l'année, les visites à l'intérieur des serres et des plantes ne sont possibles que pour une courte durée au printemps.

Botanical Garden of Brussels

"National Botanic Garden of Belgium"

Located in the northern edge of the city, the Botanical Garden of Brussels is a pretty garden that hosts a variety of plants. In 1938, most of the botanicals were moved to the National Botanic Garden, but this urban park still remains a beautiful spot to rest or take a stroll amongst the large trees. The garden still houses 30 of the 52 bronze sculptures that were a part of the park in the 19th Century. Besides the sculptures and fountains, the garden feature a gazebo at its center and has a collection of herbs, carnivorous species and rare and exotic specimens of plants.

Château de Grand-Bigard

"Historic Castle"

Built in the 12 Century, Groot-Bijgaarden Castle has a beautiful Flemish Renaissance style with pink bricks and a slate roof. Cross the impressive moat on a five-arch bridge and admire the castle's heavy fortification. As you explore this historic site, take a moment to explore the 30 meter (98 feet) high tower that was built around 1347 and was the castle's dungeon, complete with 2 meter (6.5) thick walls.
