O'Maille

"Traditional Knits!"

At this family-run store, you will find hand-knitted Aran sweaters, made from the finest fabric. A great combination of style and comfort is what makes this brand popular worldwide. You can choose from a variety of patterns and types of knitwear including tweeds, capes and wraps. O'Maille organisation has been around since March 1938 and founder Padraic O'Maille's efforts have paid off handsomely since then. It gained popularity through the film 'The Quiet Man' in which most of the attire were original O'Maille creations. So if you're in Galway and want to kill the chill, a trip to this store will certainly help you out!

Judy Greene Pottery

"Handcrafted Pottery Inspired By the Countryside"

Judy Greene has created a full range of domestic earthenware and lamps, most displaying "country" patterns featuring hand-painted flowers and leaves. The result is unique, delicately painted pottery, available in a selection of seven different floral patterns. Each piece is crafted by hand by skilled potters, making for a unique gift or souvenir. The store itself is a pleasant place to browse, and the knowledgeable staff are friendly and helpful. This hidden gem is well worth a stop in the heart of medieval Galway.
