Nic's Grill

"Burger Nirvana"

Ask a handful of Oklahoma City residents where to get the best burger in town and chances are at least one of them will tell you Nic's. If you don't believe them, just take a look at the line snaking around the block. It may look daunting, but don't worry, the wait will be worth it. The burgers are huge and made-to order with a variety of your own topping combinations. To eat like a local, get the OKC favorite onion burger, a mass of beef mixed with onion. However, burgers aren't all Nic's has to offer, the menu also features a host of classic American dishes like meatloaf (Friday's only) and hearty breakfasts. Don't forget to bring cash as Nic's does not accept credit cards, just another truly old-school fashion.

VZD's

"Live Music & Dining"

Looking for great food and live music? Go no further. This hot spot has been offering both since 1976. It does not have music every night, so call ahead, but it gets some great acts like Red Hot Chili Peppers. Enjoy a sandwich or salad, or just munch of some of the appetizers. This trendy Nichols Hills restaurant and bar is perfect for dinner or a fun night out. Expect a cover charge if there is entertainment. Enjoy Happy Hour from 4p-7p Monday through Friday with domestic longnecks on special and a free buffet.

S&B's Burger Joint

"Gourmet King Of Burgers"

Owners Shannon Roper and Bryan Neel are the restaurateurs behind OKC's favorite burger destination. Here they serve delicious versions of the American classic and this establishment has gained immense popularity among locals and tourists alike because of the rave reviews. In addition to traditional burgers, they also have some inventive alternatives like the 'Elvis', a bacon and peanut butter monster or the 'Columbian' seasoned with sea-salt and coffee. Both those options definitely cater to the more adventurous, however S&B's homemade flavor, its use of fresh ingredients and unparalleled service will ensure that you come back for more.

Johnnie's Charcoal Broiler

"Charcoal Burgers"

The man behind these popular fast-food burger joints has been in the business for more than 50 years. And with more than seven restaurants in the greater Oklahoma City metropolitan area, it is easy to see how Johnnie has remained in business for so many decades. The burgers are better than your standard fast-food favorite and here, Johnnie's gimmick is that he grates his cheddar cheese. Nonetheless, a place that has onion rings that can fit around your wrist merits all the attention it deserves. In addition to burgers and fries, the kitchen serves sandwiches, salads, chili and hot dogs also.
