The Drag

"Eclectic Shops"

The section of Guadalupe Street that borders the western edge of the University of Texas campus is called The Drag. It's filled with a variety of shops popular with the student body, such as underground bookstores, tattoo parlors, music stores, gift shops, and thrift stores. There are also numerous restaurants and cafes along the street to stop in when you're getting hungry. The Drag is only about a few blocks long, so it makes for a nice stroll on a sunny day.

South Congress Avenue

"Shopping and Dining District"

Cross the river from downtown and enter the wonderful South Congress Avenue District. Browse through its many shops and check out eateries that tantalize the taste buds and the pocketbooks. Check out Uncommon Objects, a wonderful import and knick knack shop, or The Armadillo Market, which carries everything Texas. For the famished shopper, there are more than enough options: Tex-Mex at Guerro's or the eclectic Magnolia Café are all favorites with the locals. After a cup of coffee or lunch, you should browse the retro resale shops along the avenue.
