Landmark River Oaks

"Independent and Cultural Art House"

Built in 1939, this theater is truly a landmark in Houston. An abundance of neon electrifies the exterior giving you the feeling you have drifted back in time. Three screens offer foreign language and independent films nightly. For a special treat, take in the Saturday Midnight Movie. It is always The Rocky Horror Picture Show, and you are certain to be entertained the entire time.

The McGovern Theater

"Houston's only 4D Theater"

Children and science-loving adults will love to visit this exotic movie house! The McGovern Theater at The Health Museum is a dream come true for lovers of 3D and, hold your breath, 4D art! Watch educational programs made fun as you catch giant insects, bodily cells and other inhabitants of the human body come alive on the multi-dimensional screen. Learn science the fun way as you treat your eyes to a visual feast, decked with fascinating creatures in even more fascinating forms that will make learning science and its theories a breeze. Further, a wide range of scientific research-related events are also held at this venue from time to time. Check website for more details on current and upcoming events.

Aurora Picture Show Theater

"Houston's own Northern Lights"

Houston's Aurora Picture Show Theater started off inside an old church that was built in 1924. While the location has changed, this theater still holds true to its mission. It wholeheartedly provides a haven for fringe, cutting-edge, indie-type films and other video media. See the event website to find out what's waiting to be discovered at the Aurora Picture Show.
