Upper Fort Garry

"Historic Fort"

Located at the confluence of the Assiniboine and Red rivers, Fort Garry was the trading post of Hudson's Bay Company. It was built in 1822 but severe floods washed it away. The fort was rebuilt in 1835 and came to be known as Upper Fort Garry. The fort was demolished when the city of Winnipeg came into being. However, some remains of the fort exist on which restoration work has begun. The fort was designated as a National Historic Site of Canada in 1924.

Manitoba Legislative Building

"Provincial Seat Of Power"

Dominating the heart of Winnipeg is Manitoba's Legislative Building, an exemplary neoclassical structure that was designed by architects Frank Worthington Simon and Henry Boddington III. The structure is swathed in utter splendor and features endless elements across its impressive exterior and its immaculate interior. But the crown jewel of the building is the Golden Boy, joyfully perched atop the building's central cupola, emblematic of the province's prosperity and all-round progress. Several of the building's features are inspired by mythical figures across cultures, like the Goddess Europa that signifies Canada's European heritage, or Egyptian sphinxes that flank the building's main pediment and act as an ode to the Sun God Ra. Other notable elements of this magnificent building include the Grand Staircase, the rotunda with Corinthian columns, and the Legislative Chamber.

Le Musée de Saint-Boniface Museum

"Intriguing Museum"

The Musée de Saint-Boniface Museum was built in 1846 as a convent, orphanage and a girl's school. With an eclectic architecture and serene surroundings, the place stands today as a museum that chronicles the history of the state. There are many paintings, murals, artifacts, old book and documents on display that are very intriguing and worth a watch. There are also old toys, liturgical vestments and old musical instruments. You can buy books, t-shirts and merchandise from their gift shop. Events here include workshops, lectures and other community gatherings.

Lower Fort Garry

"Imposing Limestone Fort"

A visit to the Lower Fort Garry, will give you an insight into the fur trading era and the Red River Settlement. Built in the 19th Century, this fort came into prominence owing to the Treaty No. 1 that was signed here. Originally the center of the fur trade industry, the fort was later used as a training ground for the North-West Mounted Police and then, for a short period, it functioned as a penitentiary and mental hospital. Today the fort is a popular tourist attraction and is a recognized National Historic Site of Canada.
