Flurys

"European Delights"

Park Street is lined up with a variety of restaurants, but none are as grand and historical as Flurys. Started by Mr and Mrs J Flury back in 1926, it was known as tea room that served delightful cakes, tastiest pastries and puddings and the most requested European and Swiss chocolates. Till date, Flurys retains its exclusiveness and penchant for serving the best of and exotic confectioneries. You can select the goodies you want from the take-away counter or sit down and relish the unique dishes. With recipes like linzer and sacher tortes, the European influence is very evident. Flurys also serves excellent varieties of coffee and tea. It also takes orders for cakes for all occasions including requests for egg-less and sugar-free ones. While the menu is westernized, Flurys does have special parties during festivals like Durga Puja to Rakhi. Anyone who visits Flurys to buy a particular food item, is always tempted by the mouth-watering treats displayed and ends up with loads of cute little pink Flurys bags.

Adi Dhakeswari Bastralaya

"All About Sarees"

Shopping for clothes in Kolkata is not such a bad idea, especially if sarees are on your shopping list. The traditional Indian garment can be found at various places all over the city, but Adi Dhakeswari Bastralaya has established itself as one of the most trusted names in the industry. Although the brand has been around for over 60 years, the Triangular Park branch is their first big outlet in the city, the original store being located at Gariahat Junction. While the window display is colorful enough, inside you will find the entire color palette, packed and stacked on the store's shelves. Baluchari, Kaatha, Taat and Gadat are the different types of sarees available here. The right way to buy a saree is to place yourself at one of the counters and wait for someone to display all the different varieties and colors, so that you can make a decision at leisure.
