Tinseltown

"Post-Club Munchies"

This brightly designed diner takes its influence from traditional booth seating. Tinseltown's major selling point is its late night dining in an area that has become one of London's clubbing hot spots. Hence, it's practically deserted during the day, but packed full of washed out clubbers, who come to rest their tired feet, as well as grab a bite during twilight. The caricatures of screen legends that adorn the walls are strangely mesmerizing when it's 5a and you're just about to chow on a greasy chicken burger.

All Star Lanes

"Let's Bowl!"

Celebrate your birthday or a girls/boys night out at the All Star Lanes on Brick Lane in London. This fun bowling center is smaller than most of the bowling centers you would come across in the city with only six bowling lanes. However, it makes up for the small space with an amazing atmosphere which is accentuated by dimly-lit interiors, scintillating music, separate karaoke booths and the young and enthusiastic crowd. Apart from indulging in the game of bowling, you can sip on the expertly crafted cocktails or dine on the standard American fare of burgers, steaks, sandwiches and much more than you could think of. The bowling center extends itself to the kids by creating a separate kid-friendly bowling space where they can bowl with lighter balls. Call or visit their website to know more.
