Not Just Antiques Mart

"Antiques, Collectibles, Consignment"

When you are in Las Vegas for any reason, here's a change of pace from the casinos. Located in the downtown Arts District, this 12,000 square feet, two-story building is a collector's adventure. Here you will find an array of items, including art pieces, vintage dolls, jewelry and clothing, as well as science fiction collectibles. Take a detour from the overwhelming amounts of knickknacks and enjoy the tea room and art gallery, filled with local artist's work, as well as classic pieces. If you're feeling lucky, have your tarot cards read by a modern Oracle.

Retro Vegas

"The City's Illustrious Past"

Retro Vegas celebrates all that is glam about Las Vegas with a collection made up of antiques, vintage furniture, lighting, artwork and more. Inspired by the vibrant history of Las Vegas and the colorful personalities who once called it home, the store offers an ever changing inventory of props from the city's illustrious past. If these inanimate pieces could speak, one can only imagine the stories they would have to tell. If you're looking for mid-century furniture or glassware from the Rat Pack era, this is the place to be. A number of the pieces and props are available on rent as well, perfect for a vintage-inspired photoshoot.

Gold and Silver Pawn Shop

"Meet The Pawn Stars!"

The Pawn Shop was started by Richard "Old Man" Harrison in 1989. It is a place where people come to sell artifacts of apparent historical significance and patrons can buy them. It is a great place to stroll and look around. Because of the national television popularity the place has a long line but it is worth a visit. And if you are lucky you might catch the four pawn heroes right in action!
