The Brown Hotel

"Vintage Opulence"

Experience the Gilded Age at the Brown Hotel, a historic hotel of America that was built in 1923. The striking lobby, with its architectural details and beautiful hand-painted ceiling is simply magnificent and the elegantly furnished rooms offer modern amenities with a touch of Old Kentucky elegance. The hotel's signature restaurant, English Grill, has won numerous awards and is a highly rated dining option in the city. J. Graham's Cafe is a casual dining option that serves breakfast and bistro-style meals while the property as a whole offers perfect surroundings for personal as well as business events.

Seelbach Hilton

"Old-World Opulence"

The Seelbach is a vestige of Grand Ol' Louisville. With marble details throughout, vaulted ceilings and guest rooms that feature four-post beds, "Old-World Grandeur" is an understatement. It's also consistently rated as one of the best historic hotels in Louisville. It has to be since this is the place where foreign dignitaries as well as the President stays. Most notably however, the hotel staff as well as some guests have said that there is a mysterious "Lady in Blue" that haunts the floors. Legend has it that one Patricia Wilson was to meet her husband at the hotel, however he was killed in an accident and she allegedly threw herself from a stairwell. A bit morbid, but it doesn't stop ghost-hunters as well as exigent guests from staying in this French Renaissance inspired hotel. It's also conveniently located next to plenty of attractions like Fourth Street Live, Maker's Mark Bourbon House & Lounge and the Louisville Palace Theatre.

21c Museum Hotel

"Night At The Museum"

The eye-catching 21c Museum Hotel is a delight to visit and even stay in Louisville, Kentucky. From the moment you step into this hotel, visitors often have the impression of touring a fine art museum with fabulous contemporary artwork displayed all along. The rooms are artfully decorated, which is as expected, and make for a comfortable and relaxing experience. Born out of creativity and turn-of-the-century warehouses, this was the brainchild of the Deborah Berke Partners firm and is a popular space to tour or stay in the city.

Embassy Suites Louisville

"Eastside Embassy"

The Embassy Suites brand is synonymous with comfort, class and elegance without the typical four-star price point of other similar hotels. This one is no different, it has all the amenities guests would need, from luxury bedding and toiletries to Wi-Fi access and complimentary breakfast. All of the accommodations are suites that come equipped as two rooms, one for sleeping, the other with a sofa bed, microwave and mini-fridge. It's a very spacious option indeed for both groups and family.
