Laguna Azul

"Geothermal Restoration"

Soft blue swirls of mineral-rich water and gently billowing steam that rises from the water's surface make up the magnificence of the Blue Lagoon. A gigantic geothermal spa that has effectively ridden numerous individuals of skin ailments, this man-made lagoon is one of Iceland's finest, and most visited attractions. Situated on a large lava field, the water in the lagoon is typically fed by the output of Svartsengi, a geothermal power plant that lies adjacent to the lagoon. Sulfur and silica are prime ingredients that lend the warm waters of the lagoon its curative powers, drawing eager visitors from across the world. Visitors can apply the famous silica mud mask and see its skin-restorative powers for themselves, or feel the warm gush of the lagoon's waterfalls as it takes away any semblance of soreness from their muscles. There is also a sauna room, and a restaurant on site.

Banho Termal Széchenyi

"Renomado complexo de banho e piscina"

Embora a cultura do banho tenha raízes no Império Romano, a próspera tradição húngara começou a tomar forma quando o país estava sob o domínio otomano nos séculos XVI e XVII. Mais do que apenas um local popular para moradores e turistas na capital do país, as Termas de Széchenyi também compreendem o maior complexo de banhos termais de toda a Europa. Os seus 15 banhos interiores e três grandes piscinas exteriores são alimentados por duas fontes termais cujas águas têm valor medicinal. Na chegada, os visitantes podem buscar conselhos de cura de uma equipe qualificada, relaxar com uma massagem ou terapia de rejuvenescimento, desfrutar de atividades na piscina ao ar livre e muito mais.

Karlovy Vary

"Bohemian Spa City"

Often called Carlsbad, Karlovy Vary is the famous Bohemian spa town, located about 130 kilometers (81 miles) from Prague. The historic city dates back to late 1300s and is perhaps best known for the several natural springs it is home to. Apart from over 300 springs, the place also boasts of the mystical River Teplá that always remains warm even when the rest of the city is freezing! Thanks to these beautiful hot springs and its unique location, Karlovy Vary offers some of the best panoramas in the Czech Republic, and is therefore, a popular tourist hub.

Baños Árabes

"Old Bath Site"

The Banos Arabes, or Arab Baths, is an ancient public bathhouse built sometime in the 11th Century. Incredibly well made, these baths were used until the 17th Century and are some of the best-preserved sights, even today. Built next to the Puente Arabe, or Roman Bridge, the aim of these baths was to serve the then practice and belief of the Muslims that one should be clean before entering the city. The baths have three chambers, one for a hot bath, one for warm, and a third for cold. The site later became agricultural land, and more recently, it transformed into a private garden area.
