Peel & Stone

"Bread, Brunch & More"

Reviving the lost art of freshly made bread, of which their slow-leavened sourdough bread is an example, the Peel and Stone bakery oozes charm and coziness. This lovely bakery is also open for brunch and lunch, serving a delicious weekly menu of items like sandwiches on their freshly baked bread, incredible hand-made pastries, scrambles, shrimp & grits and so much more. It goes without saying that they infuse their meals with as much freshness as they do with their bread. Stop by for a quick bite, or to simply breathe in the fragrance of freshly-baked bread.

The Lord Clifden

"Perfect Pub"

The Lord Clifden is a popular, award-winning pub and restaurant in Birmingham's Jewellery Quarter. The pub bills itself as an "urban art bar," displaying artworks from well-known street artists like Banksy and Obey. As for the offerings, aside from the continental lagers on tap (seven, to be exact,) The Lord Clifden is one of only two pubs in the city with Budvar Yeast. Patrons also very much enjoy the slushy ciders which are perfect to enjoy in the garden on a nice day. You won't go hungry at The Lord Clifden either, with one of the most popular breakfasts in the city, as well as a selection of juicy burgers. The six large screens ensure that The Lord Clifden is always a good choice for sports viewing. Please note there may be dress codes or cover charges depending on when you visit.
